BASLER COMPANY CONSTRUCTION begins at Charleston, where the $80,000 electrical manufacturing complex, which will eventually employ some 120 people, becomes a reality. Basler Company Starts Building

BY PEGGY GRISSON

CHARLESTON -- The first spade of dirt for construction of the $80,000 Basler Electric Company, of Highland, Ill., was moved here Thursday morning as executive vice president Robert P. Roepke handled the spading, before an enthusiastic group of members of the Industrial Board, Chamber of Commerce and interested citizenry.

Roepke, who said that his company was "desperately looking for new locations, where future expansion could be assured, with a definite supply of manpower," praised the enthusiasm, hospitality, cooperation and all out efforts of the Charleston residents in a brief opening speech. He pointed out that "it is possible that the Charleston plant could outgrow the fine plant we now have at Corning, Arkansas."

Included in the group who have worked so hard to effect Basler's location here were: Marian Waggener, president of the Charleston Chamber of Commerce; Don Brasher of the Warren Steel Structures Co., of Poplar Bluff, Mo., the contracting firm; Dave Brauns, the manager to be for Basler, who has moved here from Highland, Ill. to take over plant management -- and is now conducting a training unit here, and P. J. Ponder, chairman of the Charleston Industrial Committee.

The cost of the initial building, which will house equipment necessary for a staff of some 60 people, is being built a cost of $65,000. A regular force of some 120 workers is planned for the future, according to Basler officials.

Tornado Damage Heavy in Ohio

KETTERING, Ohio (AP) — Tornadoes hopscotching across Ohio left two dead, perhaps 50 injured, about 400 homeless and millions of dollars in damage.

Gov. James A. Rhodes flew during the night to the two major scenes of destruction—Kettering and the Cadiz area—offering assistance to victims.

Heaviest damage Thursday occurred at this Dayton suburban city in western Ohio. Rhodes said it might qualify as a disaster area.

Also hard hit was the Tappan Lake region near Cadiz, 175 miles east of here.

Mrs. Harry Fogie, 42, was killed when the storm leveled her house near the lake. It was one of a dozen houses destroyed in the area.

Jefferson D. Miller, 20, of Alexandria, was killed when a tree, split by lightning or wind, fell on his car near Columbus.

The tornado struck Kettering during the late afternoon rush hour. It cut a path 150 yards wide and three miles long through a residential area and into adjacent Greene County.

Thirty houses were demolished and an estimated 185 others damaged, as were an apartment building complex and a nursing home.

No deaths or serious injuries occurred in the west Ohio storm although 25 persons were treated at Kettering Memorial Hospital for cuts and bruises.

Charleston Breakins Continue

CHARLESTON -- Thieves continued their forays for the third straight night Thursday night as they wrecked the inside of the Charles Bakery, on East Market Street, to the tune of some $200 and breakins were attempted at three other businesses.

Fred Kinder, bakery owner, said that entry was gained by breaking in the front door glass at the bakery.

Desk drawers were found opened and paper strewed over the floors at the Charleston Junior High School office; an attempt to enter the Charleston Bus Station failed and the thieves tried in vain to open every door on the Charleston Veterinary Hospital -- without success.

The four Thursday night crimes ran to 20 the number of businesses affected, over a two-week span.

Boyer Submits Low Bid

NEW MADRID -- Acceptence of a low bid, in the amount of $66,3000 submitted by the Ralph Boyer Construction Co. of Sikeston, for construction of some 50 public housing units at New Madrid, was announced today by W. R. Stout, executive director of the New Madrid City Housing Authority. Work is expected to begin not later than July 1.

Stout also said that he had received a telegram from Senators Stuart Symington, Thomas H. Eagleton, advising that additional housing funds, in the amount of $59,227 had been approved by HUD.

Stout revealed that additional funds would also be available for HUD, in addition to the present $776,790, because of the rise in cost of materials and construction that has resulted since the original request for funds was filed with HUD some three years ago.

Junior High Project Gives Students Taste of Depression

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Fremont Junior High School students endured a mock Great Depression this week in an experiment aimed at increasing understanding between the generations.

Each of the youngsters was to spend only 25 cents for the week. They walked to school, washed their socks and underwear each night with bar soap, ate beans, hot dogs, hamburgers, lettuce sandwiches and boiled potatoes.

Two hundred students started the experiment Monday on the suggestion of Mrs. Marcella Othus, eighth grade social studies teacher. About 150 continued.

"The goal of the experiment is to increase understanding between the generations," said Mrs. Othus in a letter to parents.

"For once your child may be ready to hear how it was when you were a kid," she said.

She allowed only conveniences available in 1930. For the girls that meant no pastel lipsticks, hair spray, plastic curlers or hair dryers.

It also meant no television.

"But what gets to me is not being able to play my stereo records," said Jon Goodling, student body president.

The students were given a clothing list, but many chose to wear clothes that had been stored in their parents' attics since the 1930s.

Underwear and socks were the only clothing they had to wash by hand.

"Some of the students have been complaining that their clothes are stiff and itchy," Mrs. Othus said. "They're not wringing all the soap out."

One mother write to Mrs. Othus: "As a child of the Great Depression, I hope your week will stress the fact that we were materially short but not really mentally depressed. What you've never had, you don't miss."

The students won't receive a grade for the week. They will get a reward-a free Laurel and Hardy movie during class time.

Captured Document Bares New VC Offensive Plan

SAIGON (AP)— The Viet Cong's high command has called for a summer offensive in South Vietnam to force the Saigon regime to agree to a coalition government and compel the United States to withdraw troops from the country, according to a captured document made public today.

The U.S. mission said the document was issued by the Central Office for South Vietnam, the Viet Cong's supreme headquarters.

"The importance of the summer offensive should be clearly pointed out," the document said. "It is a very important phase intended to compel the enemy ... to accept serious negotiations with us, to withdrawn troops, to recognize the National Liberation Front, and to accept a coalition government."

The document gave no timetable for the new offensive, but documents captured earlier have indicated it would start in May or June.

The National Liberation Front (NLF), political arm of the Viet Cong, put forward a 10-point peace program at the Paris talks Thursday. It included a coalition government and withdrawal of all American forces.

The Viet Cong document made public in Saigon outlined these requirements for the summer offensive:

- It must be more aggressive, stronger and more painful to the Americans and the South Vietnamese than the spring offensive launched Feb. 23.

-It must succeed in destroying, wearing down, and disintegrating more American potential, more main force South Vietnamese troops, and especially more South Vietnamese village and hamlet officials.

-It must destroy large amounts of allied war materials and supply facilities.

-It must include strong attacks on allied rear bases.

The document also called for incitement of a general uprising among the population, and "liberation of hamlets and wards when the situation is favorable."

The document said the Communists "do not intend to attain the final victory overnight or in a single phase .. The victory will not come to us in such an easy way, but it will come in a difficult and complicated way. It will be a limited victory and not a clearcut, complete victory."

The document termed the spring offensive a success which had upset President Nixon's plans.

"We did not conduct any phase offensive from September to February," the document said. "This made Nixon think that we lost the initiative and that he can hold a firmer, stronger position at the negotiation table.

"The success of the 1969 spring offensive upset Nixon's plan because U.S. forces were heavily hit, and their weakening puppet (South Vietnamese) army could no longer provide support for the implementation of neocolonialism.

"The antiwar movement in the U.S. flared up again, strongly demanding withdrawal of U.S. troops. In short, the 1969 spring offensive forced Nixon to adopt a clearer policy for Vietnam and to end the war in our direction."

The document claimed 45,000 allied troops were killed in the spring offensive, half of them Americans. Official allied figures for the first five weeks of the offensive which U.S. experts now feel was the effective period - show 1,718 American, 1,799 South Vietnamese, and 24,361 enemy troops killed in action.

FDA Reports 42 Deaths From Inhaling of Sprays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-two youngsters looking for kicks in the common spray can have died after inhaling the mists from such products as mouthwashes and cleaning fluids, according to the Food and Drug Administration.

Victims were mostly teenagers, but one was only 11 years old, an FDA spokesman said.

"These kids apparently have been spraying products into plastic bags and then sniffing them," reported Joshua Zatman, the FDA's assistant commissioner for education and information.

"Then if they don't withdraw their heads fast enough, they die.

"It causes some dizziness and some elation with one breath, but if they take two or three breaths it freezes their esophagus, congests their lungs, causes asphyxia. It kills."

Zatman said the effect of inhaling the sprays is "what doctors call mildly hallucenogenic. It is the same effect you get when you drink a couple of ounces of bourbon or scotch in a hurry."

The lethal element in most of the sprays, he said, is Freon 12—an inert gas used to propel the products from cans.

"Freon 12 is the same as the gas used in air conditioners, only here it is compressed," he said. "It's the same as what you use to spray on a glass to chill it when you have your afternoon martini."

The Federal Trade Commission, Zatman said, has issued an order effective May 21 requiring manufacturers of the aerosols to label the cans with a warning.

The FTC warning states: "It is an unfair or deceptive act or practice to fail to provide a clear and conspicuous warning on the labels of such products, that the contents thereof should not be inhaled in concentrated form, and that injury or death may result from such inhalation."

Zatman said the FDA has discussed the problem with the Pharmaceutical Manufacturing Association and with the Toilet Goods Association which is launching a $75,000 educational campaign against deliberate misuse of the sprays.

The first death attributed to aerosols, he said, occurred in March 1967 and the FDA became aware of it shortly afterwards.

Paul A. Pumpian, an FDA official, told Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., who raised the matter in Congress, that there are no plans to withdraw aerosols from the market.

A breakdown by the agency showed such freon products as mouthwash directly caused 17 deaths; first aid sprays four; "cooking coat," a teflon-like plastic used to prevent food from sticking to pans, caused seven; cleaning fluid and shampoos caused two; and one death each was blamed on furniture spray, a lubricant, an antiseptic, mop spray, medicated vapor, vegetable oil spray and dedorant.

Hint of New, Lot of Old In V-C Peace Proposals

There is a hint of something new and there is a great deal that is old about the Viet Cong's peace proposals at the Paris talks.

The 10-point plan the National Liberation Front presented Thursday is largely a repetition of its widely advertised 1967 "political program." That program was a long elaboration of the original four points from Hanoi and five points from the NLF. The new presentation at Paris, however, hints that aspects of it may be considered negotiable and that the Communist side is getting into position for hard bargaining. That would be progress of a sort.

The Front's proposal is not a retreat, however. Practically every word in the 10-point proposal can be found in the 1967 "political program," which was announced after what the Viet Cong called an "extraordinary congress" of the NLF.

At that time the NLF made clear that its program could not become operable until after the withdrawal of all foreign troops and bases. The current 10-point program says the same thing.

The new pronouncement says the Viet Cong would welcome all political forces that "stand for peace, independence and neutrality, including those persons who, for political reasons, have to live abroad." The 1967 program said the same thing, although it excluded those who "cooperate with the U.S. imperialists and their henchmen."

The new call for withdrawal of troops makes it clear that the only foreign troops are those of the United States and its allies. North Vietnam is not considered foreign.

The 1967 program contained, in great detail, all that is now contained in briefer form in the "10 points." This included the offer of diplomatic relations with all nations, acceptance of economic aid from any without political strings, reunification of the two Vietnams "by peaceful means," normal relations between the two pending reunification, and all the rest, including the promises of free press, assembly, political activity and freedom of religion and conscience.

The 1967 program, like the present one, promised an independent, democratic and neutral South Vietnam with "a broad and progressive democratic regime." It promised free and democratic elections in South Vietnam, a constituent assembly and a new constitution.

What, then, is new about the 10-point program? Most of all, it is the fact that it has been laid on the table at Paris. One assumption might be that it is offered as a basis of discussion rather than a set of minimum demands. If that is so, it is possible for the talks to become negotiations.

Correction

Thursday's Daily Standard incorrectly attributed the home of the new "Miss Tennessee Universe," Miss Suzie Richardson as being the daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Barry Richardson of Portageville.

It should have read: daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Richardson, formerly of Portageville and now residents of Jackson, Tenn., and a cousin of the Portageville mayor.

Both the "Miss Tenn. Universe" and a little daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Richardson won "Miss Soybean" and "Little Miss Soybean" titles, respectively last year in the soybean beauty competition.

WORTH REPEATING

No matter what your chosen faith may be, we believe that the following quote taken from the McMinnville (Ore.) News-Register bears reprinting.

It was composed by the Reverend William E. Rose of the First Assembly of God: "Spying is risky, costly business. We were made newly aware of this in the Pueblo incident and now at even greater loss in terms of lives with the downing of the U. S. intelligence place off Korean waters.

"I've been asking 'How does a Christian view this matter, one brother spying on another?'

"Obviously the relationship of Christian and true brotherhood would make incidents like this totally unnecessary. But the problem arises in that the world is not Christian. The nations are not Christian and do not operate on the principles that make for peace.

"Some cry for us to stoy such spying. To do so would be national catastrophe. You can't force Christian principles (and that is what all the true principles of brotherhood are) and Unchristian people. My point is simply this: the business of the Christian Churchis not to stop the spying nor the wars nor the vice and crime. In short it is not to stop anything but to start an inward revolution.

"The gospel is the good news of a person and work that unities man with God and man with man in a heart-to-heart experience. To teach brotherhood is not enough. We have to be made brothers inwardly first.

"We need an inward revolution, a revolution of love. As long as the bulk of the world's leadership seeks military might as a means for peace, there will necessarily have to be intelligence operations spying on one another.

"There is great need for the Christian Church to rise to the crisis of the hour and proclaim the good news of a better way. This better way is found not only in the principles of Christianity, but also in the person, Christ, who said, 'I am the way, the truth, and the life."

Shouldn't all of us seek the inward revolution of which Mr. Rose speaks? Wouldn't it be a better world for all?

We have been giving a lot of thought to the demands of the black minorities in the college and universities.

The demand for a return to conditions that were in effect before the Civil Rights acts were passed.

We can understand their unhappiness with having to associate with the white students.

Our own local Black children still wish they were back in school in the Lincoln School instead of being bussed all over the district.

Maybe if the government would just let people live like and where they want to all folks might be happier in the long run.

STALIN'S DAUGHTER SAYS:

"I was brought up in a family where there was never any talk about God. But when I became a grown-up person I found that it was impossible to exist without God in one's heart. I came to that conclusion myself, without anybody's help or preaching. But that was a great change because since that moment the main dogmas of communism lost their significance for me."

IT TAKES MORE THAN FAITH

This has been a century of great medical advances. Smallpox, malaria, yellow fever and typhus have been conquered. Infant deaths have been reduced by half every two decades. Poliomyelitis has been virtually eliminated. Death rates have been sharply reduced from influenza, tuberculosis and rheumatic fever.

Behind the conquest of these diseases lies the faith of countless sufering individuals and their loved ones. But also the dedication and enterprise of scientists, doctors, professionals and laymen.

Among the diseases that still remain medical mysteries is one that is a greater crippler of young adults - multiple sclerosis. Some 500,000 Americans, mostly between the ages of 20 and 40, are afflicted with this debilitating disease, and related diseases. There is no known treatment.

No one knows how an individual becomes victimized by MS. No one knows a cure or preventive medical treatment. No one knows why this "foremost neurological problem of our time" is so devastating.

But the National Multiple Sclerosis Society - the only national voluntary health agency serving the needs in the field of multiple sclerosis and related diseases - is determined to find out. That is why for 23 years, since its founding in 1946, it is persistently underwritten a program of national and international research.

Over $8,900,000 has been expended on research projects and fellowship grants by the Society. Thanks to this, and the progress of many dedicated scientists, a breakthrough is anticipated by qualified observers. Victory over multiple sclerosis can and will be won because researchers now have the tools, the knowledge and the scientific and intellectual potential to conquer it.

Yes, faith helps. But funds are still needed if the scientists are going to be able to pursue the elusive crippler. That is why this year's MS Hope Chest Campaign (held between Mother's Day and Father's Day) is a crucial drive. Your contribution will help support the program of research, professional education, public education and patient services. All are needed to gain this victory over MS.

Keep your faith and your hope, but remember charity, too!

Maybe it was because the feeling that we have no business in Vietnam, but whatever the reason, we are ashamed by it.

TO THE VICTORS GO THE BILLS

The Republican Party, victorious in last November's presidential election, expects to net around $2 million from a $1,000 - a - plate fund-raising dinner in Washington on Wednesday, May 7. Five days later, on Monday, May 12, the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee will hold a fund-raising dinner in the capital to build up a kitty for the party's candidates for House and Senate races in the 1970 elections. Win or lose, in other words, politics costs money -- lots of it.

How much? Campaign workers for the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, assassinated barely halfway through his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, estimated his debt for six state primary races at $3.5 million. For television time alone, the Republicans spent $5 million and the Democrats $3 million in the 1968 presidential campaign, according to the Federal Communications Commission. American Independent Party nominee George C. Wallace spent $681,491 for TV time, the FCC says.

Altogether, general election campaign spending in 1968 reported by national-level committees of the Democratic, Republican, and American Independent parties set a new record of $49.2 million. Such expenses are reported every four years amid cries of alarm and calls for reform of campaign spending laws. Just as predictably, the cries soon die down and are forgotten along with the quadrennial proposals for reducing the political money squeeze.

The Committee for Economic Development last December issued a report proposing 10 ways of "Financing a Better Election System." The first proposal called for an "outright 50 per cent tax credit (or rebate) . . . against the annual federal income tax on all political contributions up to $50 for each taxpayer (maximum credit $25)." In view of currently rising costs of goods and credit, this seems like not much of an incentive. The Proposal has, indeed, been forgotten -- at least until 1972.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Work, not alcohol or drugs, has always been the most popular narcotic in America. We are a work-addicted people, as witness the number of men who fear compulsory retirement at 65 because they feel they'll be lost without the stimulation provided by going to a daily job.

It seems like years since we've seen an old-fashioned hairpin. Don't women ever wear them anymore?

Strawberries and modern children have one thing in common: the bigger they grow the more tasteless some of them become.

The height of boredom comes when a fellow suddenly discovers he has been talking to himself—but not bothering to listen.

The more scientific we become the more stubbornly we stick to our timeworn superstitions. If you put a large ladder across a sidewalk, eight out of 10 passers-by will walk around rather than under it. The two who do walk under it aren't any less superstititous than the others— they're just probably showoffs.

People who crave the limelight go through endless maneuvers to become the center of attention at a cocktail party, but the simplest of all ways to do it is to get an attack of hiccups.

The suspicion arises that many folks who attend church today do so because it is the one public place left where they run a minimal danger of being mugged.

There are two good reasons why housewives live longer than their husbands: (1) they can flop down on a couch any time during the day when they are tired, and (2) they avoid the physical wear and tear of the two-and three-Martini lunch, which ages executives quicker than anything.

The biggest problem facing educators today is how to find a way to convince the students that there is a real difference between going to college and going to kindergarten.

The loneliest people I know are those wealthy enough to attend public banquets frequently, but so poverty-stricken in real companionship that they can't think of anything better to do with their time. I always think they'd be happier if they learned to hook rugs and stayed at home with the cat.

The meek may indeed sometime inherit the earth, but the odds are against them holding it undisturbed for very long.

When a guy becomes so confirmed a bachelor that he carries safety pins in his pocket, a girl is wasting her time trying to lure him into matrimony.

Maturity is that stage in life you reach when you decide that it is more fun to watch the world go to the dogs than try to reform it yourself single-handed.

PATRIOTISM AND PROFIT-MOTIVE

Business enterprise in Republic USA finds itself at the crossroads of its very existence. Business, which under our individual-initiative, profit-motive system means millions of individuals, must make a choice of following the wrong lane to its destruction or the right lane to survival and new achievement.

Business has sought every possible customer in its effort to make every possible dollar, refusing to participate in or use programs with a patriotic theme for fear of losing a few sales dollars and arousing threats of boycott from the far left. As further concessions, business spends fabulous sums in sponsoring some programs which sadly have a positive anti-American propaganda line.

This is done on the terrifying presumption, which appears to be too true, that good patriotic citizens will NOT complain. This business presumes to keep the vocally noisy and influential pinks in silent appeasement.

Business has not considered how it will explain its total demise under socialism by whatever name socialism may masquerade. Stockholders and citizens are going to ask: "What destroyed the capitalistic system that made progress possible? What caused the political and economic debacle that annihilated our systems, our company and every other firm which we built on the solid virtues of earnest work, individual effort, courage to invest and to produce a better product or service under the goad of personal competition?"

Patriots and Freedom-enthusiasts believe that the American consumer, the sovereign customers of business, would walk another block or drive an extra mile to spend their money with a firm which believes in our Republic. Business must take a choice, and so on, of saving America with its mass of customers, or business may choose to keep the vocal wrong-siders on its books. The predictable result is the loss of books, business and all. The splendid patriots who have carried the load for all of us all these years must be reinforced. HLH

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson say: Agnew can't escape his oil friends; his PR man on New England trip was Sinclair employee; utility lobby blocks savings to consumers

WASHINGTON--Vice President Spiro Agnew has been working much harder at his job than most people realize. It's not an easy job. Under the constitution the chief duty of the Vice President is, in effect, waiting for the president to die--which isn't a happy assignment. His other duty is presiding over the Senate--which is boring. Nevertheless, Agnew has been very conscientious.

However, he can't seem to escape his oil friends.

After issuing indignant denials when this column reported on his meeting with oil magnates in Midland, Tex., the Vice President turned up in New England last month with a representative of Sinclair Oil handling his public relations.

As a result, New Englanders increased their skepticism regarding Agnew's denial that he had promised Texas oilmen that the free port at Machiasport, Me., would be blocked.Texas oilmen want to Near East oil entering a free port in New England where hitherto they had the market to themselves.

The Sinclair Oil representative who handled Agnew's public relations, Spencer Schedler, was quite dictatorial about them. He had an air of proprietorship about him. He admonished newspapermen that there could be no pictures taken at the Vice President's dinner, land limited press questions.

Reaction to the Agnew-Sinclair visit was not good. The Portsmouth, N.H., Herald published an editorial headlined "the stench of oil smothered Agnew's visit to Manchester." It read:

"Don't sniff now--it might gag you -- but if your nostrils are beginning to detect a faint whiffjlor oil in the air, particularly when the wind is from the West, they could be right.

--New England Indignation--

"What your nose is catching is the aftermath of the visit of Vice President Agnew to Manchester Tuesday.

"If New England really needed confirmation of the article Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson wrote a few weeks ago concerning the Vice President and the deal he proposed to an assemblage of oilmen, it was there for all to see.

"Managing the Agnew advance public relations was one Spencer Schedler, who described himself as 'On Vacation' from his job with Sinclair Oil.

"Would someone please tell us why Vice President Agnew--with the administrative appropriation he gets--needs someone from Sinclair Oil to handle his relations with the press?

"The reader with a memory will recall that it was Sinclair Oil that threatened to bring an injunction against the foreign trade zone for Machiasport, and representatives of Sinclair were undoubtedly present at the meeting described by Pearson.

"In that article, Pearson made the flat statement that Agnew told a covey of oilmen that if they would financially back the Nixon campaign they could consider occidental petroleum's Machiasport plan as dead.

"Belatedly, Agnew expressed the hope no one from occidental was at the meeting, only to discover that there was."

--No Utility Cuts--

There's a tax sleeper inside the house ways and means committee that will cost gas, electricity and telephone users around half a billion dollars a year.

The sleeper is so complicated that consumers won't understand it and neither do some members of the ways and means committee. However, the utility lobbyists have been so astute in pushing the amendment that it will probably pass.

It would prohibit the federal communications commission and the federal power commission, plus state regulatory commissions, from requiring that the benefits of rapid depreciation for tax purposes be passed on to consumers in the form of lower rates.

This would prevent the FCC from going ahead with a pending American telephone and telegraph rate investigation which could result in cutting the Bell System's long distance rates by around $180 million a year. It would also prevent the California public utilities commission from going ahead with a rate reduction of $120 million this yeear. Natural gas pipeline customers would forfeit reductions of $138 million a year and electricity consumers $558 million annually.

For years American Tel and Tel has been trying to block the FCC's power to regulate phone rates.

Ex-Sen. Clarence Dill of Washington, author of the federal communications act, tells how he was pressured to eliminate any regulation of telephone rates from the original bill which he drafted.

"Sen. Alben Barkley of Kentucky came to see me opposing it," says Sen. Dill. "Alben was a great guy, but I could tell the telephone lobbyists had come to see him. He argued that phone rates should be locally regulated.

"After that Millard Tydings of Maryland came around to say the same thing.

"I knew the Telephone Company received a lot of patents from the navy after World War I for nothing and that they couldn't stand an investigation of this. So I introduced a resolution calling for an investigation. Shortly thereafter the lobbyist for the telephone company came around to see me and complained: "What are you trying to do to us?'

"I think the public ought to know how you obtained those patents," I said.

"Will you drop your investigation if we drop our opposition to the communications act?' The AT&T lobbyist said.

" 'No,' I replied, 'But I'll be so busy passing the bill that I probably won't have time to go through with the investigation."

This is how the FCC's authority to regulate phone rates was passed in the first place. The present sleeper before the ways and means committee would modify the benefits of this authority.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

TRIPPING UP KENNEDY:

Barry Goldwater Jr.'s Win Delights Businessmen Who Now Plan to Capture Senate for Nixon.

Washington, D.C.: When Barry Goldwater Senior asked Barry Goldwater Junior what he could do for him during the son's race for Congress, the 30-year-old candidate advised: "Send me money and stay out of California."

The junior senator from Arizona, chuckling all the while, told me that's exactly what he did -- except for a short personal mission which took him to the state.

"Now there are two of us," says the once-upon - a - time presidential candidate, "and I don't know if Washington can stand it but we'll sure try to make a go of it."

Mr. Goldwater was not the only one who sent along some money. A modest sum came from a comparatively new political fraternity called BIPAC -- Business - Industry Political Action Committee. They wanted the 30-year-old Goldwater because they believe he's "intelligently conservative and objectively business - oriented."

And that's BIPAC's bag, as the new university English has it. BIPAC's 50-man board of directors, headquartered in New York City, believes it has the same inherent civil right to campaign for a business - oriented Congress as the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education has to campaign for liberal and labor control of the national legislature.

So BIPAC is raising a million - dollar campaign fund to back up its sentiments.

"We have no reason to conceal anything," says BIPAC's small band of cool strategists. "We give the money and the local business community buys broadcast time or door bell ringers, or spends it in any fashion it believes will help the business - oriented candidates. We're out in the open. We report the contributions.

"We have spent most of our time explaining to business leaders what BIPAC is. Now they know. They are in politics. Ours is a low visibility growth compared to labor's COPE. But we are in politics to stay. And we must be doing something right. We've had inquiries from businessmen as far off as Italy and Japan, and as near as Canada, asking how we do it."

For BIPAC, 1969 is the only year of the political heats. The 1970 big congressional race is the thing on which to spend that million dollars.

BIPAC's low-voiced, soft-sell politicalized businessmen have done their homework.

They believe that a shift of four Senate seats can tie up the tallies in the upper house and give Vice President Agnew the tie-breaking vote on organizaiton in January of '71. That could give powerful committee chairmen to the Republicans and President Nixon in the second half of the presidential term.

BIPAC's businessmen note, too, that many intimates and political allies of Ted Kennedy will be running in '70 for reelection or for higher office.

And BIPAC wants to trip them up before the main dash in '72.

There is, for example, the 34-year-old Congressman John Tunney, son of the ex-heavyweight world champ Gene Tunney. By 1970 he will have three terms behind him. The first time on the hustings he had Ted Kennedy with him. And that brought in the votes. Now Mr. Tunney plans to run against Republican Sen. George Murphy, who'll be 68 by campaign time next year. This is an election into which the businessmen of BIPAC plan to move.

There's also Ted Kennedy's good friend, Sen. Joseph Tydings of oyster- laden Maryland. His term is up in '70. BIPAC would like to make that permanent -- and will try.

One of the shaky ones, BIPAC believes, is Sen. Charles Goodell, whom Gov. Nelson Rockefeller appointed to complete Bob Kennedy's term. What is referred to, often in awe, as the Kennedy machine, is being primed to run the energetic, though still little-known young senator into permanent obscurity. BIPAC will make its "modest contribution" in that New York race too, say the business leaders, who are for Mr. Goodell's election, though they consider him now more liberal than he was in the House of Representatives.

They reckon, as they make the rounds of major cities for conferences with business leader, that the Kennedy machine would be considerably slowed down if it were beaten in a series of such races where defeat of "a friend of Ted's" would be publicly and widely interpreted as a defeat for the young man from Massachusetts.

As for control of the Senate, this is possible because BIPAC considers many of the party's term - enders quite vulnerable. Among those who will be fought by the businessmen's Political Action Committee are Senators Tom Dodd, Holland, Hartke, Tydings, Hart, Cannon, Williams, Montoya, Burdick, Young, Gore, Yarborough, Moss, and McGee.

All are intense liberals except for Sen. Holland of Florida. But he will be 78 by campaign time and may retire.

BIPAC, in whose headquarters there never is the voluble aggressiveness of labor's COPE, would like to retire the rest. That would give the Barry Goldwaters a lot more company. And it would make things more comfortable for Richard Nixon too.

It does look like Barry Goldwater Jr.'s successful race against not only his opponent but also labor's heavily mobilized forces was a preview of the big shows in '70 and '72.

References were taken from "American Home", "Good Housekeeping", "Better Homes and Gardens", "House Beautiful", and various other publications. Age and transportation facilities should also be considered. Also, the finishing touches should reflect a persons' personality.

By REEDUS M. BAUGHER

In this lesson we will seek to know; what Jesus thought of the scriptures, the Bible, how much value He gave them. Some have been guilty of saying, "you can prove anything by the Bible." This, to say the least, is certainly a reproach upon the holy character of the Bible's author, God; and a reflection upon His infinite wisdom. None of us would want word to get around that, "you can prove anything by him or her." And certainly we shouldn't think of God, nor His word in this manner. Christ didn't consider the scriptures of God, the Bible, as a medium to prove everything; nor do we, who follow Him, believe that man can prove anything he wants to, by the scriptures. But we do believe that the scriptures have proven themselves over and over again, to be infallible, as a guide, in things pertaining to God and eternity. In essence the scriptures reveal, we believe, "that God is," and that He is, "the rewarder of those who diligently seek him." (Heb. 11:6) This of course, involves, all the information necessary concerning God, His reward, and all the information necessary about man and why he needs to seek God, to enjoy the rewards; also, the way to seek God is made abundantly clear.

How did Jesus look at the scriptures? The person who calls himself a Christian, is claiming to be a follower of Jesus Christ. He is then, committed to a position of respect for the standard of values portrayed by Christ. The Christian has the solution to the question, "What should my attitude be regarding the scriptures?" He only has to learn the attitude that Christ had in this matter. And any person, after learning of the attitude and judgements of Jesus, and still does not know what position to take, admits thereby that he does not follow Jesus Christ, and is not worthy to wear the name Christian. Questions which pose a problem to all serious students of religion is: "What about the scriptures, what respect must we have for them, are they reliable, can they be taken literally????" The Christian will be guided in this matter, as in all others, by the respect he has for the judgements of Christ. He is content to ask, "What did Jesus think, and what use did He make of them?" Let us remember, that the same critical questions that are now raised against the scriptures, could have been raised in Jesus' day. Christ set the pattern of attitude for us. And every doctrinal difference we may have can be traced to our attitude toward what God has said, in His word. Would Jesus accept the position taken by many today, that all religions are all right? For the answer to this question read Matthew 15:3-9, also verse 13. (This lesson to be continued).

Ann Landers

Diabetes Is An Illness

Dear Ann Landers: I am 19 and have decided that in September I will enter the seminary to begin my study for the priesthood. I've thought about this for a long time and it's what I really want.

No problem? Not quite. Since August I've been dating a lovely girl. I love her, Ann, and I know she loves me. How do I tell her of my decision to become a priest? I've tried but nothing can make me say it.

I continued to date her -- with lips sealed. I'd like to continue to date her until I leave for the seminary, and of course when I come home for vacations. Am I selfish? Have I really made up my mind? -- Dilemma

Dear Dil: I consulted with a Catholic priest who said: The longer you put off telling the youg lady of your plans, the less chance you have of becoming a priest. Furthermore, my consultants pointed out that you are not only selfish but dishonest. You want the enjoyment of the relationship but not the personal responsibility. The answer to your last question is emphatically no.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister is a wonderful gal but sometimes she acts as if she has the mind of a peanut. It's hard to believe she went to Wellesley.

Every week or ten days I get a letter from Sally. I wouldn't dare open the envelope in front of anyone because I never know what will fall out. She has written on brown paper sacks, shirt cards and Unitarian Church bulletins (scrawled in heavy ink over the type) Yesterday I received an eight-page letter on paper toweling -- the kind you find in a washroom.

I've never said a word about her kooky writing paper but maybe it's time I spoke up. Yes or no? -- Sick Of Surprises

Dear S.O.S.: Sally probably enjoys an offbeat trademark and there's nothing wrong with it - but if it bugs you, send her some stationery. You can buy a big box at the dime store for less than a dollar.

Dear Ann Landers: You made a grave error and I hope you will be big enough to admit it. In replying to "St. Louis Woman," you said: "Diabetes is an illness." This is not true. Diabetes is the malfunction of the pancreas gland.

My grandson has diabetes and he is an excellent student and cannot be considered sick by any standard. Doctors will also tell you that diabetics are usually more intelligent than others.

Please print this letter and set the record straight. -- Upholder Of Accuracy

Dear Up: Many people who have diabetes function extremely well and do not consider themselves sick. And this is good.

But by definition diabetes is an illness. There actually are two unrelated diseases with the name - diabetes mellitus, caused by the failure of the pancreas to produce insulin; and diabetes insipidus, which is related to a disorder of the central nervous system. The former disease is what is commonly meant by the term diabetes. As you say, thousands of people live happy, productive lives in spite of it, and I'm sure your grandson will do very well.

How will you know when the real things comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Words cannot express the joy which a new bike brings to a youngster...but a smile can! A smile also expresses pride of ownership and anticipation of the places he can go and things he can do now that he has his own two-wheeler. Behind this great big smile was a very small Want Ad which delivered the bike to its new owner. And you can bet there is another smiling party involved in the transfer of ownership...the party who placed the Want Ad and sold the bicycle for cash. Ricketts Keeps Red Birds Sharp With Jokes, Ribbing

By CHARLIE BAROUH
Associated Press
Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS AP - "Hicks," said third-string catcher Dave Ricketts to reserve outfielder Jim Hicks, "there are two kinds of players on this team.

Jim Hicks

"The kind that plays and doesn't help the team, and the kind that doesn't play and doesn't help the team. Now, pretty soon," Ricketts added, "you're going to be with me in the second group."

Hicks stared, laughed, and tried to think of a come-back. He couldn't but that night he helped throw out two baserunners to preserve a shutout for Bob Gibson and the St. Louis Cardinals. Ricketts was back at it the next day.

"Was it Eddie Stanky who said it takes a big man to go out there and play this game when he's not hitting?" Ricketts asked. "Hicks, it took a big man to go out there and go out for 4 and threw out those two runners."

Ricketts may be in the backline of players on the St. Louis Cardinals, but he's in the forefront of the needlers on the team. The 33-year-old product of Duquesne University has ridden the bench and players alike during the Cardinals' past two pennant - winning seasons. He's the ringleader of laughs on the Cardinals.

Now that the Cardinals - whom most experts picked to win everything but the Kentucky Derby - are in fifth place in National League's eastern division, the laughter is just as loud and much more important.

"When you're losing it's like this," Ricketts said. "You know the way this game goes. It can change overnight, so you don't ever get down on yourself, I can remember over the last two years some real bad slumps it didn't look like we'd ever get over.

"But we stayed together and pulled ourselves out. And we did it because we could laugh at our mistakes and bounce back. If we can't sit down and laugh and talk to keep morale up, then we should have quit a week ago."

Ricketts, who has earned the respect of teammates with his baseball knowledge, knows his place is in the bullpen, or on the bench. The wise-cracking Cardinals make sure everyone knows exactly what he's supposed to do.

"With guys like Tim McCarver and Joe Torre, I know I'm not going to play much," Ricketts, said, "but everybody is here for a purpose and everybody here has ability. The whole thing is, not one should wants to sit on the bench. You don't make money there, but you have to do something to keep your spirits up, because if you don't, you'll go plumb out of your mind."

Though the wisecracks seem to fly around the room with as much organization as a shotgun blast, there's a very strict routine in the kidding.

"I just walk around and look and then I'll see somebody, but I won't say anything for a couple of days," Ricketts explained.

"Then we'll all get on him and make a joke of it. If you lose, you wait till the next day and let the guy get himself together.

"If a guy is doing something consistently wrong, you make a joke of it and pretty soon he might say to himself: 'Hey, maybe I am doing something wrong.'"

A new player on the Cardinals waits for the baiting and accepts it, usually with deep appreciation.

"It used to be that the new guys would get stuck in a corner and never say anything," Ricketts said. "But here, during batting practice, or fielding practice, we get on them and we're sort of saying: "We know you're around, don't let yourself get down.' If you don't get ripped, you'd go into a corner and say, 'Maybe I'm not worth it.' So we just go from the bottom to the top and get on everybody.

"But when we leave this locker room, we're all pulling for each other, because we know we need each other to win. Like Lou Brock, who's having a tough time now. Everybody is pulling for him, because we know as soon as he gets going, we'll start moving.

"The thing about this ball club is, it takes care of its own. A guy here doesn't have a chance to get down or loaf, because in the next couple of days it's going to come back at him as a joke."

Realignment Ball Still in the Air

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle has moved to within 24 hours of running with the realignment ball himself and personally selecting the three National Football League teams that have to switch to the American Football League.

Rozelle made that revelation himself at the end of an 11-hour day of talks with both NFL and AFL club owners Thursday in yet another session of the marathon pro football meetings that now have lasted almost two months and been held on both coasts of the United States.

Admitting that "I don't have a firm commitment from any club" to move, Rozelle said he felt a solution had to be reached by Saturday at the latest and if the NFL owners could not select the three teams "I am prepared to pick them."

The owners have been meeting on a solution to the realignment problem since mid-March when they originally sat down in Palm Springs, Calif. They held a second session last week and then reconvened again Wednesday.

The only hard fact that has evolved in the almost two months of talks is that realignment almost certainly will be accomplished by shifting three teams from the 16-team NFL into the 10-team AFL to form two conferences of 13 teams each.

Asked if he had the power to step in, Rozelle replied:

"They (the owners) may give it to me or I may insist upon having it. In that case I think I can get it."

Rozelle said he had spent some time considering his three candidates for a shift but declined to specify any of his choices or speak in other than generalities about what factors would be taken into consideration.

The teams most prominently mentioned in speculation have been Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Minnesota and St. Louis, but Rozelle said only three teams actually will not be considered for a move—New York, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"One way or another," Rozelle insisted, "we'll have a decision by Saturday."

Alcindor Draws Praise From Lakers' Jerry West

by MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Lew Alcindor can't miss making it big in the National Basketball Association, says Jerry West.

"I think he's going to be the most valuable player in the league," said the superstar of the Los Angeles Lakers today.

Here to receive a car as the outstanding player of the recent NBA final playoff series between the Lakers and the winning Boston Celtics, West was asked whom he would pick first if he had to select a pro team today.

"Lew Alcindor," he replied without hesitation.

"I've watched him play and he can do everything. He has Bill Russell's agility. He is quick, has great hands, can shoot and is an unselfish player.

"His one weakness is rebounding. For a guy his size he doesn't do enough. But with competition that will improve.

The 22-year-old Alcindor, a towering 7-foot-1 1/2 235-pounder from UCLA, recently signed a multi-year contract calling for an estimated $1.4 million with the NBA's Milwaukee Bucks.

The 30-year-old Laker sharpshooter sang Alcindor's praises after reporters had asked him to compare teammate Wilt Chamberlian, 32 7-1, 275 pounds, and Russell, 35-year-old playing coach of the Boston Celtics who is 6-9 and weighs 220. Chamberlain, 32 7-1, 275 pounds, and Russell, 35-year-old playing coach of the Boston Celtics who is 6-9 and weighs 220.

"Wilt Chamberlain is a better all-around player than Russell," said West. "He's a better scorer and rebounder and I think he even blocks more shots than Russell.

"But for the one guy for the one game I'd have to pick Bill Russell. His record speaks for itself.

"If I had to say what the difference was in our final series, I'd say Bill Russell. He's a winner.

"And I'm not knocking Wilt. He's a great player but everyone says he's a loser. Well I'm a loser, too, and so is Elgin (teammate Elgin Baylor). We haven't beaten Boston and that's on thing I wanted most. I thought sure this was the year we were going to do it."

"West, hampered by a pulled hamstring muscle in his left leg in the final two games with Boston, scored 42 points, grabbed 13 rebounds and had 12 assists in the 108-106 losing seventh game with Boston.

The 6-3, 175-pound backcourt wizard set an NBA playoff record of 556 points. He scored 265 in the seven-game set with Boston for a 37.8 average.

"Jerry West is the most complete player in the NBA today —and maybe of all time," said his coach, Bill van Breda Kolff, at the luncheon honoring West Thursday.

West was presented with a 1969 Dodge Charger R-T by Sport Magazine. Jerry said he almost gagged when he was shown the car.

"My God, it was green—Boston Celtic green," he said.

Catcher Picks Up Mizzou Hopes

COLUMBIA — Few of Missouri's baseball players ever luxuriate in the security of a full scholarship. A slim budget keeps most of Coach John (Hi) Simmons' athletes on economy rations.

Mark it down that Steve Earl Patchin, freshman catcher, will shake up the ol' establishment in 1969-70. The 195-pound backstop is a cinch to inflate Hi's outlay for the next three years.

Cheerfully, Mizzou's veteran coach can afford to upgrade his rugged backstop's talent fee. Little things impress Hi -- notably Patchin's team-leading .380 batting average as the Bengals barge into Manhattan for a K-State series this weekend.

The 195-pounder from Joplin, Mo., also leads the club in runs, hits, homers and is tied with outfielder Del Blunk for the most runs - batted - in.

Patchin started playing ball at seven, as a Little League catcher and pitcher.

"At Joplin, we have a baseball program for anyone from 7 through 19 years of age," he explained. "There's more than one organized league at the different levels -- and a baseball school for 5- and - 6 year olds. I coached in that last summer."

Steve's early tutelage came from his father, Earl, a postal supervisor and his coach in those formative years. An uncle, Ed Patchin, once played professionally in the New York Yankee system.

Except for a brief exposure as a pitcher, Steve has concentrated on the catching trade. Along the way he's had good guidance.

"My Legion coach used to be a pro catcher -- Earl Skaggs. When I was younger, I liked to watch Yogi Berra behind the plate. Those were the years when the Yankees had the best teams."

"They might have resented it, but they didn't show it. In fact, the older catchers really helped me a lot during fall workouts."

Batting fourth for Mizzou's light - hitting entry all spring, Patchin has smacked 27 base-hits in 71 trips to the plate. Three of his blows have been home runs. Only one other Missourian, outfielder Paul Frisch, is batting respectably at .308.

In the Big Eight compilations, where only conference games are figured, Steve is hitting .392 -- third - best in the league.

Trouble is, K-State has several sluggers of the Patchin stripe hitting equally well. Three rate among the loop's top five this week -- Bill Huisman (.415), Bob Randall (.381) and Bob Gartner (.375).

"And that group doesn't even include Woolsey," notes Coach Simmons. "He's as dangerous a hitter as there is in the league."

With Ol' Mizzou (9-6) and Kansas State (6-5) jousting for third place, Simmons plans to pitch Bob Sheetz and lefty Tom Lundgren in Friday's double - header. Al Bush, a sophomore left-hander, may draw the Saturday call "depending on how Lundgren fares against those tough-hitting lefties in the K-State order."

Coach Bob Brasher's outfit is ripping away at a .287 pace, best in the Big Eight, but the Purple pitchers show the poorest earned run average -- a composite 5.85.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- The University of Missouri - St. Louis biology department offers one of the nation's few electron microscopy programs for undergraduates.

Using a special, miniature electron microscope, students learn fundamentals before performing analysis on the large UMSL Hitachi electron scope, which can magnify objects 2.5 million times.

The program is especially valuable for biology major who plan to pursue graduate studies since proficiency in electron microscopy is usually necessary at that level of study.

Weight classes in wrestling have been revised for the 1969-70 season nd protective head-gear has been made mandatory. These were the major changes by the high school division of the national wrestling rules committee at meetings held in late March and early April and released recently.

Weight classifications for the 1969-70 season will be as follows: 98, 107, 115, 123, 130, 137, 145, 155, 165, 175, 185 and unlimited. The divisions started at 95 in recent years and followed with 103, 112, 120, 127, 133, 138, 145, 154, 165, 175 and unlimited.

There has been divided opinion on the 95-pound class in recent years and the increase to 98-pounds appears to be a compromise between those who wanted its elimination and those who wanted to keep it unchanged.

The rule on headgear was actually placed in the rules in 1968-69 as being optional. It has now been made mandatory for the 1969-70 season.

Other rules changes were:

1. A larger wrestling area is recommended even though the circular 28-foot and square 24-foot mats will continue to be legal. The rules will recommend, however, that a 32-foot wrestling area (circle or square) be utilized.

2. Out-of-bounds interpretation has been simplified. If either wrestler has supporting parts inside the boundary line, wrestling is to continue.

3. Flagrant misconduct provisions have been re-worded, and the awarding of points clarified.

4. Application of the guillotine will be considered potentially dangerous when the arm of the defensive wrestler is forced beyond its normal range of movement.

5. Wrestling is to continue while warning and penalizing a defensive wrestler for stalling.

Plant a tree if you're looking for a good supply of fishing bait. Or you might consider going hunting with a tin can and flashlight the next time a thunderstorm comes along.

Although these may not sound like ways to get bait, they are helpful in assuring a supply of worms for summer angling.

Fishermen who plant trees will make sure they have at least one catalpa tree in the yard. For this is the source of the long, green catalpa worms considered a delectable dish by many species of fresh water fish.

Catalpa worms are the larval stage of sphinx moths. They often grow three inches long and are found only on catalpa trees, their sole source of food. They are harvested by shaking the tree and picking up worms that fall to the ground.

Keeping them is easy. A box with catalpa leaves in the bottom works fine. To save them for later use, put them in a can with some commeal and keep the can refrigerated. They can be strung on the hook like an ordinary fishing worm.

At night, during a heavy rain storm, earth worms will come out of the ground and lay on top of the grass or just underneath. Many of them will travel, moving out onto concrete driveways and streets curbs. All you need do is don a raincoat, grab a can and flashlight and pick up a good start on your summer's bait supply. During prolonged storms, you can repeatedly return to the same driveway, finding a fresh supply of worms each time.

Perspective, the impression of depth in a two-dimensional surface, is achieved through the use of a vanishing point, the point where any set of parallel lines will seem to converge. The World Almanac notes that this method for creating linear perspective was devised by the Florentine architect, Filippo Brunelleschi (1377-1446).

Spring Grid Drills End For Big 8 Schools

Defending co-champion Oklahoma and Colorado climax their spring football drills by facing rugged-looking alumni teams, while Kansas State and Nebraska close out their spring sessions in intra-squad games Saturday.

The other four Big Eight schools held their annual spring games last Saturday and have completed spring practice.

At Oklahoma, Coach Chuck Fairbanks will send his Sooner varsity against a strong alumni team headed by Bobby Boyd, Mike Ringer, Ron Shoots, Bob Harrison, Jim Grisham, Granville Liggins, Clendon Thomas and other former OU stars. The OU varsity won 44-26 last year for five wins in a row, but the alumns lead the series, 12-8.

Oklahoma was believed to be loaded offensively but facing problems on defense when spring practice began. Things have worked out to be the reverse, however.

"We don't have much of a chance against the competition we have to play unless our offense improves one thousand per cent between now and next season," said Fairbanks. "Our defense has outfought our offense."

Colorado's alumni series has been a close one, with each side winning three games since Coach Eddie Crowder initiated the game in 1963. The Old Grads won 23-0 last year against a varsity team handicapped by the absence of quarterback Bobby Anderson, who was playing baseball.

Anderson, the Big Eight's total offense leader, will direct the Buffalo varsity this time and will oppose alumni quarterback Bernie McCall, the Big Eight passing leader three years ago.

Eddie Dove and Boyd Dowler will coach the Colorado alumni.

Most of the attention in Kansas State's intra-squad game will center on quarterback Lynn Dickey, the Big Eight's passing leader last year as a sophomore.

But Coach Vince Gibson will be more concerned with the Wildcats' running attack and defense. Russell Harrison, Mike Montgomery and junior college transfer Henry Hawthorne have impressed Gibson as runners, while two other juco transfers, tackle Ron Yankowski and defensive back Tom Roberts, have bolstered the defense.

At Nebraska, where Coach Bob Devaney is trying to regroup the Cornhuskers after two "off" years of 6-4 records, the big question has been at quarterback. Frank Patrick, outstanding as a sophomore two years ago and disappointing last year when Ernie Sigler beat him out, has been No. 1 most of spring practice.

The Huskers have 31 lettermen back, including halfback star Joe Orduna, end Jim McFarland, linebacker Ken Gedes and defensive back Dana Stephensson - the latter two all-Big Eight choices last fall.

3 Lilbourn Teachers Retire

By NADINE TOWNSEND

LILBOURN — When the final school bell rings this year at the Lilbourn schools, three teachers, with a total of 99 teaching years in the schools here, will retire.

A brother nd sister team, Owen J. Taul and Miss Appalone Taul, each have served 35 years and Curtis Cross has 24 years service in the Lilbourn system.

Taul and his sister, Miss Appalone, came to the Lilbourn system in 1934.

He has served as principal of the high school for 31 years and superintendent for four years, from 1942-46, in the absence of Lynn Twitty, who was in the armed forces.

After high school, he attended Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau and received his teaching degree. He later received his Master's degree from the University of Missouri.

In 1964 he was selected "Teacher of the Year" by the Southeast Missouri Teachers Association.

Active in Scouting, Taul organized Lilbourn Boy Scout Troop 50 in 1940 and has been scoutmaster of the troop since that time. He plans to continue with the troop after retirement.

In 1946 he received the Silver Beaver award, the Southeast Missouri Area Council's highest for his work in Scouting.

When he takes his troop of Scouts to Camp Lewallen this year it will be his 27th year to spend a week in Boy Scout camp. He has also attended two National Boy Scout Jamborees.

Always active in community affairs, he received the Legion of Honor award in 1966 for 25 years service to the Lilbourn Kiwanis Club.

A past president of the Lilbourn organization, he served as Lieutenant Governor of the Missouri - Kansas - Arkansas Tri State organization in 1948. He has served as club secretary for 26 years.

A 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason, he is a past Master of the New Madrid Masonic Lodge.

"Although I am retiring from teaching, I will continue my work in Scouting, and continue to share my responsibility in community affairs," he said.

Miss Taul, also a native of Canalou, graduated from Sikeston high school. Her BS degree in education was received from Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau. She did graduate work at the University of Missouri.

Her major is in Social Studies and she has a permanent secondary teaching certificate in biology, American History, World History, Geography, American Problems, Citizenship and Health. She also holds a permanent elementary certificate.

She began her teaching career in Lilbourn as an elementary teacher in 1934. For the past few years, she has taught eighth grade Social Studies, reading and spelling.

A dedicated teacher, she believes in hard work and strict discipline.

Miss Taul has served as a class sponsor of grades 9, 10, 11 and 12 throughout her time at Lilbourn.

An active community worker, she is a charter member of the Lilbourn Civic Improvement Club.

She is looking forward to retirement and a well earned vacation.

Curtis Cross began his teaching 42 years ago in Miller County, Mo., where he taught for 11 years. From there, he went to Freemont in Carter County where he taught for six years. Later he taught one year in Oregon County, and came to Lilbourn in 1944, where he has taught 24 continuous years.

His final year in teaching has been with a sixth grade.

He has three daughters, two sons and 16 grandchildren.

The retiring teachers will be honored by the school faculty at a potluck dinner 7 p.m. Tuesday at the school cafeteria.

Rare indeed is the school that has the services of such dedicated teachers as Owen Taul, Miss Appalone Taul and Curtis Cross, but Lilbourn has been blessed with these three. Their loss will leave a vacuum that will be hard to fill.

"Thank you Owen Taul, Miss Appalone Taul and Curtis Cross."

TRUMAN

EARLY VENTURE in the haberdashery business in Kansas City did well at first, but failed in the depression of 1921-22. Truman, left, and partner Eddie Jacobson had to sell out, heavily in debt.

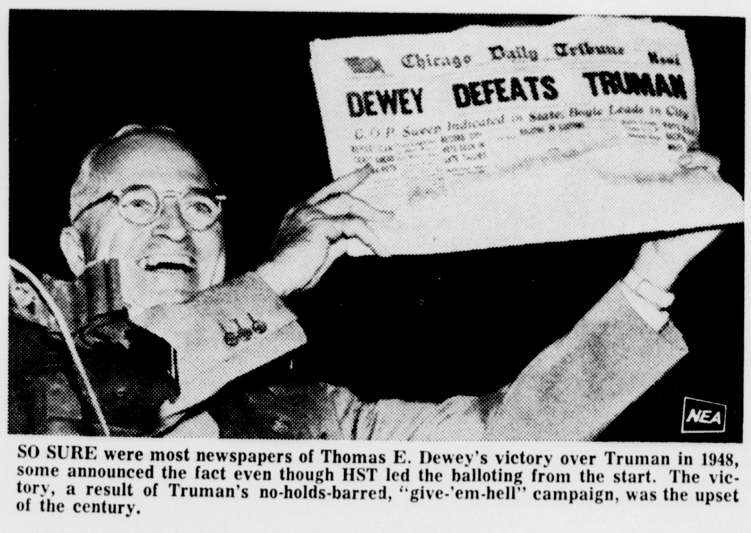
KEEPING HIS HAND IN, the old warrior met with Democratic candidates Humphrey and Muskie during last year's campaign. More in party spirit than prophetic wisdom, Truman said he was standing between two winners.

AN AVID WALKER, Truman liked to wear sports clothes for his early morning strolls at the "Winter White House" in Key West.

AMID A HUSHED GATHERING of Cabinet members and leading congressmen, Harry S. Truman takes the oath of president of the United States, administered by Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone. Sudden death of Franklin D. Roosevelt on April 12, 1945, thrust world leadership upon Truman at the climax of World War II.

PROBABLY THE BEST MUSICIAN ever to become U.S. president, Truman played the piano since childhood. At a 1945 Press Club Canteen, HST's keyboard efforts got an attractive assist from then film-newcomer Lauren Bacall, a la Helen Morgan.

POTSDAM CONFERENCE in 1945 brought freshman world leader Truman in contact with veterans Churchill and Stalin. The man referred to as "little" discovered he was the tallest of the Big Three and was amused to learn that Churchill and Stalin preferred photos that concealed their slight stature.



SO SURE were most newspapers of Thomas E. Dewey's victory over Truman in 1948, some announced the fact even though HST led the balloting from the start. The victory, a result of Truman's no-holds-barred, "give-'em-hell" campaign, was the upset of the century.

STRONG WILLS CLASHED when Gen. Douglas MacArthur failed to clear Korean war policy through the White House. Truman raised but survived a political storm by recalling the Far East commander in 1951.

A SOLDIER STILL, the former Chief Executive, a captain in World War I, inspects a Marine honor guard during a return visit this April to his favorite vacation spot of White House days—Key West, Fla.

Harry S. Truman has asked only that Americans remember him in the terms of his favorite epitaph, which he saw in Tombstone, Ariz.: "Here Lies Jack Williams. He Done His Damnedest." In the "Oxford History of the American People," however, author Samuel Eliot Morison says, ". . . with more fateful decisions than almost any president in our time, he made the fewest mistakes." An enviable record for a man who didn't go to college, but possessed a rare, invaluable political weapon–the gift of overt honesty.

Students Remember Mother's Day Is Sunday

SUNDAY IS THE DAY set aside to honor mothers all over America.

"Why should mothers be honored?"

Many reasons are quite evident, although not always realized. Mothers care for their children's cuts and bruises, teach them how to feed and dress themselves, and how to be mannerly young ladies and gentlemen.

Mothers wake their children up on school mornings, feed them their breakfast when they are too sleepy to eat, and struggle with wet, muddy boots when they come in from school on rainy afternoons.

"Who else would come to school at 3:30 and wait half an hour while her son or daughter attends a meeting that they failed to mention to her?"

"What person would tolerate the stereo turned on full blast?"

"Who else would keep dinner warm and waiting for her children who come home at different hours during the evening?"

Mothers sacrifice much time, personal pleasure, and strain on their nerves to provide happiness and contentment for their children.

Each person should remember his mother this Sunday. He should make a special effort to let her know that she is loved and appreciated.

SHS Students Are Active Participants In Athletics

SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL is fortunate to have a worthy and well-supported athletic program.

Football, basketball, wrestling, track, baseball, golf, and tennis are all extensive components of this system.

The variety of sports makes it possible for almost all boys who are interested in participating to choose a sport which appeal to him.

A large number of boys took advantage of this opportunity this year which created larger and more competitive squads.

In view of this exacting competition though, there was still room for the lower classmen and boys of somewhat limited ability.

This was caused by the fact that with the increased quantity of membes, deeper and more exacting clubs were formed.

This was also the basis on which a more extensive junior varsity system was set up.

Thus, despite the student's capabilities, he was able to find some place on one of the sundry teams.

In their participation on the squads these boys were endowed with a strong sense of school spirit and accomplishment.

School sports also give boys a chance to meet some of the best area and statewide competitors.

No matter to what degree of excellence a boy is able to reach, all participants who have been a part of Sikeston high school athletics should be congratulated for their interest and initiative to become a part of the school's athletic system.

Todd Leslie Eskew

Eskew Boy Named For Palsy Drive

"I don't know what to say about it, but I'm happy!"

That was the excited reaction of Todd Leslie Eskew when he learned that he had been selected as the poster boy for the Scott-Mississippi County Cerebral Palsy drive. Todd is the son of L. B. and Bessie Eskew, 110 Jackson Street, Sikeston. Todd, who was 8 years old this past Wednesday, is a very happy and cheerful young boy, even though he is unable to walk, and has practically no use of his arms or hands. He has cerebral palsy, the result of an illness he had when he was 11 days old.

Todd is one of the first children to be evaluated at the Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic. His parents decided to live in Sikeston rather than Cape Girardeau when they learned the Diagnostic Clinic would be located in Sikeston.

Todd has been attending school at the Diagnostic Clinic the past year. Although his speech has always been good, he has now learned how to count, spell his name and other short words, and had learned the alphabet and the colors, among other things. He also receives speech stimulation, physical therapy and recreational activities, and has matured socially a great deal. In addition, a complete set of braces has been obtained for him through the Cerebral Palsy Unit.

He enjoys music, particularly country and western. His favorites are Homer and Jethro. One of the highlights of his stay at the clinic was when Ken Curtis, bettern known as "Festus" of the Gunsmoke TV series, visited Todd at the Diagnostic Clinic.

The Scott-Mississippi County Cerebral Palsy campaign for funds is currently in progess.

Cerebral palsy is a condition caused by damage to the human brain, usually at birth. "Cerebral" refers to the brain and "palsy" to lack of control over the muscles. Various forms of the disorder are classified depending on the area of the brain affected. Three main types are the spastic individual who moves stiffly and with difficulty, the athotoid who has involuntary and uncontrolled movements, and the ataxic whose sense of balance and depth perception are disturbed.

Since cerebral palsy affects the muscle control centers of the brain, its most common effects are awkward, shambling gait, lack of balance, tremors, guttural speech and grimacing. Spasms and seizures in varying degrees, mental retardation and defects in vision and deafness are also commonly an integral part of the disorder.

There are more than 600,000 persons in the United States who have Cerebral Palsy, and almost all of these persons can be helped in some way. Cerebral Palsy is not a disease, nor is it hereditary or contagious.

The campaign chairman for the Sikeston drive is Miss Pauline Poeppelmeyer. The Elks Club will set up a roadblock Saturday morning from 9:00 to 1:00, and the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority members will be contacting all local businesses to collect money for the United Cerebral Palsy. The money, 70% of which remains in the local area, is used to purchase equipment, braces or medical services for the Cerebral Palsy persons in the Scott - Mississippi County Area. Persons wanting to give, but not contacted, may call Mrs. Noah Heath, (649-2373) who is the president of the Scott-Mississippi County affiliate chapter.

PRAYER: O God, our Father, we confess to having lost a sense of priorities and the right use of time. Enable us to care for those next door who know Thee not. Help us so to act that the lambs near us will look up and always be fed, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

First priority of the ball park goes to the youth when the program starts, second priorty will be given to the Ladies Softball team (an organized team, the park being available to them when there are no youth games scheduled. No one will be authorized by the Park Committee to use the lights on Wednesday nights.

Bootheel Weather Outlook for May: More Rain, Below Average Temperatures

By LEONARD F. HAND

The ESSA Weather Bureau 30 Day Outlook for May indicates below normal temperature averages and above normal rainfall totals for the Missouri Bootheel.

Most high pressure systems influencing the Bootheel will enter the Pacific Northwest and cross the Northern Rockies and Plains to the upper Mississippi Valley. Centers will generally follow a path north of the Missouri Border, drawing cool air southward over the state at times. The most likely result is one or two nights with cool readings followed by warming southerly winds as each system passes through.

Low pressure centers are expected to develop in the Rockies and cross the Mississippi Valley on a line through Northern Missouri. This path is more likely to link rainfall with showery conditions as cold fronts move across the state. A similar pattern during the latter part of April reduced the development of secondary disturbances that opened up the Gulf joisture source for heavy rains early in the month. Five day weather outlooks will be a good guide to timing and amounts of rain anticipated during this critical period.

Rainfall totals were generally well above normal for April, with 8.68 inches collected at Portageville, and 8.75 at the University of Missouri Experiment Field near Hayward. The bulk of this water was received during the first three weeks of April, nd less than an inch fell in the last 12 days of the month, with only two days with measurable rain. Good drying weather under predominantly sunny skies brought fields back into shape so that planting was underway on many farms by the end of the month.

Although temperatures are on the upswing in May, they are not normally warm enough to promote sufficient evaporation to dispose of the normal rainfall. A surplus of near an inch of rain usually goes into soil storage or runoff. Excess field water combined with occasional cool spells are a tip off to watch for seedling diseases and need for post emergence weed control in field crops. Timing of shower periods may also affect spray schedules for diseases in strawberry and orchard crops.

Normal rainfall for May for the Bootheel as a whole is 4.46 inches. Normals for other cities are:

Cape Girardeau 4.80 Inches, Caruthersville 4.24 inches, Dexter 4.59 inches, Doniphan 4.84 inches, Morehouse 4.42 inches, New Madrid 4.90 inches, Parma 4.70 inches, Poplar Bluff 4.83 inches, Sikeston 4.44 inches.

1. Advisory Agricultural Meteorologist, ESSA, Weather Bureau University of Missouri Delta Center, Portageville, Mo.

Short term averages for other points:

Advance 4.53 inches, Bernie 4.67 inches, Bloomfield 4.77 inches, Charleston 5.26 inches, Clearwater Dam 5.46 inches, Deering 3.83 inches, Kennett 5.60 inches, Malden 4.38 inches, Portageville 5.77 inches, Puxico 5.02 inches, Qulin 4.61 inches, Wappapello Dam 4.95 inches.

Long term records show that for May with above normal rainfall, the average totals measured at Poplar Bluff was 7.54, Sikeston 7.81 and Caruthersville 7.78 inches.

The ranges of measurements under those conditions were Poplar Bluff 5.18 inches to 13.10, Sikeston 5.20 to 13.34, Caruthersville 5.48 to 13.93 inches.

Soil temperatures respond rapidly to warm, sunny weather, and should recover well from brief cool periods. However, it does take more heat to warm wet soils. At the same time, the presence of water in the soil reduces heat loss to the atmosphere. Readings taken early in May showed that 4 inch temperatures were still cooler than at seedbed levels, so that heat transfer from lower layers will be only a slight influence in moderating seedbed cooling at night. Long periods of cloudy weather will slow the upward trend in soil warmth more effectively than short periods of cooling.

Union Delegate Collects For Shower Injuries

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Handsome Harry was chosen by his union to attend a pompous and rumpus union convention with all expenses paid. A delegate-at-large (he went without his wife), Harry never got to participate in the festivities. While taking a shower in his hotel room, he slipped on a treacherous cake of soap and ended up on his back in the hospital instead of his feet at the convention.

Out of commission for several months, Harry applied for a Workman's Compensation Award on the theory that his injury was due to his job as a union delegate.

"Nonsense," Harry was told. "Taking a shower was an act of personal cleanliness and not a union activity. Since it was of no benefit to the union, you're not entitled to an award."

"You're wrong," was Harry's answer. "My taking a shower was certainly of benefit to the union. If I had gone down to the convention hall looking and smelling like a Pete the Tramp, I'd have been of no value as delegate. No one would have come close enough to talk to me."

Determined to collect, Harry took his claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Harry a Workman Compensation Award for his spill in the shower?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that when an employee is sent to a convention as a delegate, his appearance is just as important to his employer as it is to himself. After all, noted the judge, since no one wants to do business with a dirty man, his mission would be seriously hampered if he didn't look and smell his best.

Evaluation of Cong Peace Plan Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is expected to instruct his Paris envoys to determine whether the Viet Cong's 10-point Vietnam peace plan is a propaganda gimmick or a sign of readiness for serious bargaining.

The 10 points, proposed by the Viet Cong's Tran Buu Kiem at Thursday's Paris session, stack up basically as a combination of elements in the four and five-point plans long standard in North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomatic presentations.

But the new text omitted their customary propaganda polemics, went into greater detail than before, used some different phrasings and left enough ambiguities to whet the appetites of U.S. strategists searching for a break in the lengthening stalemate at the conference table.

It also was noted that Kiem's statement was the first such enemy presentation since the return to Paris of Le Duc Tho, the most powerful member of the North Vietnamese negotiating team, from consultations in Hanoi.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., commented that the 10-point program should provide "a reasonable starting point" for Vietnam peace negotiations.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., commented that the 10-point program should provide "a reasonable starting point" for Vietnam peace negotiations.

Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, said in a statement that this is the "first initiative on the part of the NLF (National Liberation Front) which contains enough in the way of substance to offer a hopeful possibility that the talks may now get off dead center and that a responsible settlement of the war in Vietnam may be forthcoming."

"The detailed proposals of the NLF should be given a close examination," Mansfield said.

Nixon discussed the enemy plan with security affairs advisor Henry A. Kissinger at Key Biscayne, Fla., following the news from Paris.

Since the President sees secret talks as the best way to make negotiating progress, the U.S. mission headed by Henry Cabot Lodge probably will try to sound out enemy envoys privately.

Both the Florida White House and the State Department in Washington were keeping silent on any U.S. reaction to the enemy proposal at this time. There was a possibility a South Vietnamese response would come from Saigon following U.S. consultations with the Thieu government.

The 10-point proposition dealt with issues fundamental for both allies—withdrawal of foreign forces and the political future of South Vietnam.

The Viet Cong statement called for a pullout of all U.S. troops unconditionally without pledging a withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces or even admitting they are in South Vietnam. This has been rejected by the allies in the past.

But it also said, without amplification, that "The question of the Vietnamese armed forces in South Vietnam shall be resolved by the Vietnamese parties among themselves." And it proposed "international supervision"—not further specified—of withdrawal of American troops.

The United States has been proposing international supervision to safeguard a settlement —and U.S. negotiators would be interested if Hanoi is willing to accept international inspection to insure that its forces go home too.

On the political front, the statement went into detail on proposals to replace the present Saigon leadership with a coalition government which would be succeeded by a national regime based on free elections.

The question here is whether the Viet Cong wording allows enough room for bargaining for a broadened government representation that might be acceptable to the Thieu regime.

Pile of Proposals for Ike Memorials Growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is considering a growing pile of bills to memorialize Dwight D. Eisenhower. Proposals range from naming the first moon landing site in his honor to putting his picture on the dollar bill in place of George Washington's.

Legislation to honor the World War II commander and 34th president who died March 28 are stacked in Capitol Hill hoppers with 25 bills introduced in the House alone. All are still in committee.

Some call for naming a dam after Eisenhower as well as two airports, the interstate highway system and the moon landing site.

Eisenhower's family says it has no favorite among the plans.

"We've been very honored by all the proposals," said his son, John by telephone from his Phoenixville, Pa., home.

"I don't think it's up to us to recommend anything. I can't see a hunk of marble somewhere, though."

Eisenhower seldom publicly discussed his wishes on memorials.

"That would be the last thing Dad would ever talk about," John said.

But in a speech at the dedication of Eisenhower Park in Newport, R.I., July 22, 1960, President Eisenhower told the crowd: "I am deeply touched by this kind of gracious incident and thought for the simple reason that a name given to a place like this endures."

Another of his favorite namesakes was Eisenhower College at Seneca Falls, N.Y., which enrolled the charter freshman class of 300 last fall. In the announcement of his death, Eisenhower's family suggested donations to the college, among other charities, instead of flowers.

The bill to name the first U.S. moon landing site "Point Eisenhower" was introduced by Rep. William G. Bray, R-Ind.

Slain Priest's Auto Found

MEMPHIS (AP) — Police reported today the automobile of a Roman Catholic priest, who was slain April 18 in a Sullivan, Mo., motel, was found on a downtown Memphis parking lot early today.

Police said a prisoner held in Connecticut in connection with the slaying had told authorities there he left the car in Memphis and threw away the keys.

A warrant issued by Franklin County, Mo., authorities Thursday charged George F. Mcenerney, 28, of Ansonia, Conn., in the strangulation of Msgr. Howard C. Teacle, 46, of Shreveport, La.

Msgr. Teacle's body was found April 18 in a Sullivan, Mo., motel room. He had been teaching at Villa Duchesne High School and resided at Immaculata Rectory in Clayton, a St. Louis suburb.

Another man also is sought in connection with the priest's death.

Mcenerney was arrested by police in Derby, Conn., Wednesday for failure to pay a hotel bill.

Strip Mine Bill Moves Step Closer

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's first strip mine reclamation law was advanced to position for passage on a voice vote in the Senate Thursday.

A similar measure is pending in the House.

Under the watered down compromise version winning first round approval in the Senate, only strip coal mines would be covered. Limestone quarries, barite mines and fire clay pits were eliminated in committee.

The bill started as a project of an interim study committee on mining and was intended to stave off a federal takeover in this field.

Sen. William J. Cason, D Clinton, handling the bill, said the Peabody Coal Co., largest coal operator in Missouri, had no objections to the measure.

Coal mine operators would have to get permits from a State Strip Pit Reclamation Commission and would be required to restore disturbed land to a rolling topography suitable for forestation, pasture or crops.

The commission would include the state geologist, conservation director, mine inspector, secretary of the water pollution board, two coal mine operators, one mine employe and one representing the public at large.

Violation would be a misdemeanor subject to a $50 to $1,000 fine and each day would be a separate violation.

Earlier the Senate shunted aside a bill to extend the present public anti - discrimination law to all employers instead of only those hiring 25 or more workers. The bill must be delayed until an estimate of its cost is attached.

Also advanced was a bill to increase retirement benefits to about 1,220 aged teachers to $150 a month if their net worth is below $30,000.

Another measure moved ahead before the Senate quit for the week would set up a system of contesting school elections.

The House passed and sent to the Senate bills to:

Give county assessors and their staffs pay raises with half the cost paid by the state. The House defeated an emergency clause that would have made the increases effective as soon as approved by the governor.

Increase the monthly benefits under the blind pension fund and the aid to the blind from $85 to $95.

Let the division of mental diseases license and regulate homes for the mentally retarded.

Grant Cutback Puts Squeeze on Public Libraries

NEW YORK (AP) - Scholars and students are among the 8,000 who each day visit the terraced Fifth Avenue research library, the grandaddy of this city's 192 free public libraries.

Now it and the others are in serious financial trouble.

The money-squeeze may force a drastic curtailment in operations, closure of 36 branches and termination of 500 jobs if budget-makers in the city, state and Washington get their way.

And elsewhere in the nation, libraries are facing similar problems as wage scales increase in the face of mounting reluctance by local and state governments to approve fatter budgets.

Mark Revaluation Rated Monetary Crisis Solution

NEW YORK (AP) — Another monetary crisis is boiling up in Europe. Once again it centers on a widely expected revaluation of the German mark.

What are the elements of this complicated problem? Here, based on the opinions of experts, are some answers to frequently asked questions:

Q. What is revaluation?

A. When a currency is revalued its relationship or parity to other currencies is raised. For example, a German mark costs about 25 cents now. If Germany revalues the mark 8 per cent —the amount experts say it will be changed —the mark would cost about 27 cents. After revaluation more French francs and British shillings would have to be paid for marks than before.

Q. What are the causes behind the pressure to revalue?

A. There are numerous pressures but the foremost is that Germany continues to earn more abroad than it spends. It had a $4 billion trade surplus last year and the surplus is expected to be higher this year. Speculators are betting Germany's trade partners will not tolerate this imbalance much longer.

Q. But how could the United States and other countries be better off if marks cost more to buy?

A. The United States has been running a balance of payments deficit. After revaluation of the mark U.S. goods would be more attractive on German markets. The same holds true for the goods of other countries trading with Germany, because the mark now would buy more than it did before. Germans would buy more imports.

Conversely, German goods would become more expensive in foreign markets. After revaluation the price of a Volkswagen might go up. This could make the new Ford Maverick more attractive to American consumers.

Q. Is the dollar under attack in this crisis?

A. No. While the dollar is being used as a vehicle for speculation, the mark is the volatile currency. The French franc and the British pound also figure in the speculation, as holders trade them for marks.

Q. Was the franc weakened by French President Charles de Gaulle's resignation?

A. De Gaulle's resignation may have started the snowball rolling again, but it didn't cause the problem any more than a chronic headache is caused by stopping the use of aspirins.

France has been pummeled by an inflationary spiral since its riots last spring and has lost billions of reserves. De Gaulle's formidable posture on maintaining the value of the franc held off devaluation, but there is speculation a new

Q. The British pound has been under pressure. Is this because of the mark?

A. Not exactly. Britain long has been in the situation of the man who earns $100 a week but spends $200.

It used to be the island center of an empire, from which it could draw resources. But the empire has slipped away and now this island nation must pay for the imports on which it is so heavily dependent.

Q. Will Germany, which has said revaluation is not in sight, finally give in?

A. Experts say the question is not "Will Germany revalue?" but "when will it revalue."

Q. Why would Germany be reluctant to revalue?

A. Germany revalued its mark upwards by 5 per cent in 1961, and the results were not encouraging. German farmers found their goods became less competitive in Europe. Germany views further revaluation as a last resort.

Arms Talk Delay Sought For New Weapons Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Joint Chiefs of Staff reportedly are trying to convince the Nixon administration to delay U.S.-Soviet arms talks to allow testing this summer of a new missile weapons system.

The military leaders are said to be concerned that starting the talks earlier would prevent testing the Multiple Independently Targeted Re-entry Vehicles—MIRVs—and put the United States behind the Soviets in deployment of the multiwarhead system.

Supporters of an early start to the disarmament talks are said by government sources to feel that a delay might dim Soviet interest in an arms agreement because of Moscow's fear of losing ground to the United States in development of MIRVs.

Defense experts feel the United States is ahead in developing MIRVs at this time.

Such a weapons system is considered the next significant step in the arms race. MIRVs involve equipping existing missiles with several nuclear warheads that can be fired at several targets or used as scatter decoys to confuse enemy radar.

In fact, many of those involved in the current debate over the Safeguard antiballistic missile system feel MIRVs would provide an even greater threat to the world's nuclear strategic balance than the ABM.

As one Safeguard opponent put it, if the ABM as planned is susceptible to being flooded by a massive Soviet missile attack, it would be even more susceptible if the missiles were equipped with MIRVs.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers' public position on the start of arms talks is that they will take place probably in the latter half of June.

An indication the Soviets may be interested in early arms talks was seen in the announcement Thursday by the official Soviet news agency Tass that nuclear nonproliferation treaty, ratified by the U.S. Senate in March, had been submitted to the Soviet parliament.

Action is expected at the Supreme Soviet's next session, probably in June. The treaty signed last July by the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union does not become binding until ratified by all three.

U.S. officials have proposed that the Soviet Union and United States ratify the treaty simultaneously, but the State Department said Thursday it had received no response from the Soviets as yet.

The first place the United States plans to put MIRVs is in its nuclear submarine fleet, as it switches from the Polaris missiles to the multiheaded poseidons.

The first vessel scheduled for conversion, the Andrew Jackson, is currently at the Naval shipyard at New London, Conn., with final testing of the Poseidon scheduled this summer.

Thus, a final determination that the weapon is operational could precede the opening of arms talks if they are delayed.

Basler Company Starts Building

BY PEGGY GRISSON

CHARLESTON -- The first spade of dirt for construction of the $80,000 Basler Electric Company, of Highland, Ill., was moved here Thursday morning as executive vice president Robert P. Roepke handled the spading, before an enthusiastic group of members of the Industrial Board, Chamber of Commerce and interested citizenry.

Roepke, who said that his company was "desperately looking for new locations, where future expansion could be assured, with a definite supply of manpower," praised the enthusiasm, hospitality, cooperation and all out efforts of the Charleston residents in a brief opening speech. He pointed out that "it is possible that the Charleston plant could outgrow the fine plant we now have at Corning, Arkansas."

Included in the group who have worked so hard to effect Basler's location here were: Marian Waggener, president of the Charleston Chamber of Commerce; Don Brasher of the Warren Steel Structures Co., of Poplar Bluff, Mo., the contracting firm; Dave Brauns, the manager to be for Basler, who has moved here from Highland, Ill. to take over plant management -- and is now conducting a training unit here, and P. J. Ponder, chairman of the Charleston Industrial Committee.

The cost of the initial building, which will house equipment necessary for a staff of some 60 people, is being built a cost of $65,000. A regular force of some 120 workers is planned for the future, according to Basler officials.

News Briefs

Charleston Breakins Continue

CHARLESTON -- Thieves continued their forays for the third straight night Thursday night as they wrecked the inside of the Charles Bakery, on East Market Street, to the tune of some $200 and breakins were attempted at three other businesses.

Fred Kinder, bakery owner, said that entry was gained by breaking in the front door glass at the bakery.

Desk drawers were found opened and paper strewed over the floors at the Charleston Junior High School office; an attempt to enter the Charleston Bus Station failed and the thieves tried in vain to open every door on the Charleston Veterinary Hospital -- without success.

The four Thursday night crimes ran to 20 the number of businesses affected, over a two-week span.

Charleston police are continuing a 24-hour investigation.

Boyer Submits Low Bid

NEW MADRID -- Acceptence of a low bid, in the amount of $66,3000 submitted by the Ralph Boyer Construction Co. of Sikeston, for construction of some 50 public housing units at New Madrid, was announced today by W. R. Stout, executive director of the New Madrid City Housing Authority. Work is expected to begin not later than July 1.

Stout also said that he had received a telegram from Senators Stuart Symington, Thomas H. Eagleton, advising that additional housing funds, in the amount of $59,227 had been approved by HUD.

Stout revealed that additional funds would also be available for HUD, in addition to the present $776,790, because of the rise in cost of materials and construction that has resulted since the original request for funds was filed with HUD some three years ago.

Tornado Damage Heavy in Ohio

KETTERING, Ohio (AP) — Tornadoes hopscotching across Ohio left two dead, perhaps 50 injured, about 400 homeless and millions of dollars in damage.

Gov. James A. Rhodes flew during the night to the two major scenes of destruction—Kettering and the Cadiz area—offering assistance to victims.

Heaviest damage Thursday occurred at this Dayton suburban city in western Ohio. Rhodes said it might qualify as a disaster area.

Also hard hit was the Tappan Lake region near Cadiz, 175 miles east of here.

Mrs. Harry Fogie, 42, was killed when the storm leveled her house near the lake. It was one of a dozen houses destroyed in the area.

Jefferson D. Miller, 20, of Alexandria, was killed when a tree, split by lightning or wind, fell on his car near Columbus.

The tornado struck Kettering during the late afternoon rush hour. It cut a path 150 yards wide and three miles long through a residential area and into adjacent Greene County.

Thirty houses were demolished and an estimated 185 others damaged, as were an apartment building complex and a nursing home.

No deaths or serious injuries occurred in the west Ohio storm although 25 persons were treated at Kettering Memorial Hospital for cuts and bruises.

Junior High Project Gives Students Taste of Depression

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Fremont Junior High School students endured a mock Great Depression this week in an experiment aimed at increasing understanding between the generations.

Each of the youngsters was to spend only 25 cents for the week. They walked to school, washed their socks and underwear each night with bar soap, ate beans, hot dogs, hamburgers, lettuce sandwiches and boiled potatoes.

Two hundred students started the experiment Monday on the suggestion of Mrs. Marcella Othus, eighth grade social studies teacher. About 150 continued.

"The goal of the experiment is to increase understanding between the generations," said Mrs. Othus in a letter to parents.

"For once your child may be ready to hear how it was when you were a kid," she said.

She allowed only conveniences available in 1930. For the girls that meant no pastel lipsticks, hair spray, plastic curlers or hair dryers.

It also meant no television.

"But what gets to me is not being able to play my stereo records," said Jon Goodling, student body president.

The students were given a clothing list, but many chose to wear clothes that had been stored in their parents' attics since the 1930s.

Underwear and socks were the only clothing they had to wash by hand.

"Some of the students have been complaining that their clothes are stiff and itchy," Mrs. Othus said. "They're not wringing all the soap out."

One mother write to Mrs. Othus: "As a child of the Great Depression, I hope your week will stress the fact that we were materially short but not really mentally depressed. What you've never had, you don't miss."

The students won't receive a grade for the week. They will get a reward-a free Laurel and Hardy movie during class time.

Captured Document Bares New VC Offensive Plan

SAIGON (AP)— The Viet Cong's high command has called for a summer offensive in South Vietnam to force the Saigon regime to agree to a coalition government and compel the United States to withdraw troops from the country, according to a captured document made public today.

The U.S. mission said the document was issued by the Central Office for South Vietnam, the Viet Cong's supreme headquarters.

"The importance of the summer offensive should be clearly pointed out," the document said. "It is a very important phase intended to compel the enemy ... to accept serious negotiations with us, to withdrawn troops, to recognize the National Liberation Front, and to accept a coalition government."

The document gave no timetable for the new offensive, but documents captured earlier have indicated it would start in May or June.

The National Liberation Front (NLF), political arm of the Viet Cong, put forward a 10-point peace program at the Paris talks Thursday. It included a coalition government and withdrawal of all American forces.

The Viet Cong document made public in Saigon outlined these requirements for the summer offensive:

- It must be more aggressive, stronger and more painful to the Americans and the South Vietnamese than the spring offensive launched Feb. 23.

-It must succeed in destroying, wearing down, and disintegrating more American potential, more main force South Vietnamese troops, and especially more South Vietnamese village and hamlet officials.

-It must destroy large amounts of allied war materials and supply facilities.

-It must include strong attacks on allied rear bases.

The document also called for incitement of a general uprising among the population, and "liberation of hamlets and wards when the situation is favorable."

The document said the Communists "do not intend to attain the final victory overnight or in a single phase .. The victory will not come to us in such an easy way, but it will come in a difficult and complicated way. It will be a limited victory and not a clearcut, complete victory."

The document termed the spring offensive a success which had upset President Nixon's plans.

"We did not conduct any phase offensive from September to February," the document said. "This made Nixon think that we lost the initiative and that he can hold a firmer, stronger position at the negotiation table.

"The success of the 1969 spring offensive upset Nixon's plan because U.S. forces were heavily hit, and their weakening puppet (South Vietnamese) army could no longer provide support for the implementation of neocolonialism.

"The antiwar movement in the U.S. flared up again, strongly demanding withdrawal of U.S. troops. In short, the 1969 spring offensive forced Nixon to adopt a clearer policy for Vietnam and to end the war in our direction."

The document claimed 45,000 allied troops were killed in the spring offensive, half of them Americans. Official allied figures for the first five weeks of the offensive which U.S. experts now feel was the effective period - show 1,718 American, 1,799 South Vietnamese, and 24,361 enemy troops killed in action.

FDA Reports 42 Deaths From Inhaling of Sprays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-two youngsters looking for kicks in the common spray can have died after inhaling the mists from such products as mouthwashes and cleaning fluids, according to the Food and Drug Administration.

Victims were mostly teenagers, but one was only 11 years old, an FDA spokesman said.

"These kids apparently have been spraying products into plastic bags and then sniffing them," reported Joshua Zatman, the FDA's assistant commissioner for education and information.

"Then if they don't withdraw their heads fast enough, they die.

"It causes some dizziness and some elation with one breath, but if they take two or three breaths it freezes their esophagus, congests their lungs, causes asphyxia. It kills."

Zatman said the effect of inhaling the sprays is "what doctors call mildly hallucenogenic. It is the same effect you get when you drink a couple of ounces of bourbon or scotch in a hurry."

The lethal element in most of the sprays, he said, is Freon 12—an inert gas used to propel the products from cans.

"Freon 12 is the same as the gas used in air conditioners, only here it is compressed," he said. "It's the same as what you use to spray on a glass to chill it when you have your afternoon martini."

The Federal Trade Commission, Zatman said, has issued an order effective May 21 requiring manufacturers of the aerosols to label the cans with a warning.

The FTC warning states: "It is an unfair or deceptive act or practice to fail to provide a clear and conspicuous warning on the labels of such products, that the contents thereof should not be inhaled in concentrated form, and that injury or death may result from such inhalation."

Zatman said the FDA has discussed the problem with the Pharmaceutical Manufacturing Association and with the Toilet Goods Association which is launching a $75,000 educational campaign against deliberate misuse of the sprays.

The first death attributed to aerosols, he said, occurred in March 1967 and the FDA became aware of it shortly afterwards.

Paul A. Pumpian, an FDA official, told Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., who raised the matter in Congress, that there are no plans to withdraw aerosols from the market.

A breakdown by the agency showed such freon products as mouthwash directly caused 17 deaths; first aid sprays four; "cooking coat," a teflon-like plastic used to prevent food from sticking to pans, caused seven; cleaning fluid and shampoos caused two; and one death each was blamed on furniture spray, a lubricant, an antiseptic, mop spray, medicated vapor, vegetable oil spray and dedorant.

Correction

Thursday's Daily Standard incorrectly attributed the home of the new "Miss Tennessee Universe," Miss Suzie Richardson as being the daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Barry Richardson of Portageville.

It should have read: daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Richardson, formerly of Portageville and now residents of Jackson, Tenn., and a cousin of the Portageville mayor.

Both the "Miss Tenn. Universe" and a little daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Richardson won "Miss Soybean" and "Little Miss Soybean" titles, respectively last year in the soybean beauty competition.

Hint of New, Lot of Old In VC Peace Proposals

There is a hint of something new and there is a great deal that is old about the Viet Cong's peace proposals at the Paris talks.

The 10-point plan the National Liberation Front presented Thursday is largely a repetition of its widely advertised 1967 "political program." That program was a long elaboration of the original four points from Hanoi and five points from the NLF. The new presentation at Paris, however, hints that aspects of it may be considered negotiable and that the Communist side is getting into position for hard bargaining. That would be progress of a sort.

The Front's proposal is not a retreat, however. Practically every word in the 10-point proposal can be found in the 1967 "political program," which was announced after what the Viet Cong called an "extraordinary congress" of the NLF.

At that time the NLF made clear that its program could not become operable until after the withdrawal of all foreign troops and bases. The current 10-point program says the same thing.

The new pronouncement says the Viet Cong would welcome all political forces that "stand for peace, independence and neutrality, including those persons who, for political reasons, have to live abroad." The 1967 program said the same thing, although it excluded those who "cooperate with the U.S. imperialists and their henchmen."

The new call for withdrawal of troops makes it clear that the only foreign troops are those of the United States and its allies. North Vietnam is not considered foreign.

The 1967 program contained, in great detail, all that is now contained in briefer form in the "10 points." This included the offer of diplomatic relations with all nations, acceptance of economic aid from any without political strings, reunification of the two Vietnams "by peaceful means," normal relations between the two pending reunification, and all the rest, including the promises of free press, assembly, political activity and freedom of religion and conscience.

The 1967 program, like the present one, promised an independent, democratic and neutral South Vietnam with "a broad and progressive democratic regime." It promised free and democratic elections in South Vietnam, a constituent assembly and a new constitution.

What, then, is new about the 10-point program? Most of all, it is the fact that it has been laid on the table at Paris. One assumption might be that it is offered as a basis of discussion rather than a set of minimum demands. If that is so, it is possible for the talks to become negotiations.

Quite a large number of Sikeston's young people prepared lunch and started to Little River, Sunday afternoon, to enjoy an outing and eat supper in the woods.

WORTH REPEATING

No matter what your chosen faith may be, we believe that the following quote taken from the McMinnville (Ore.) News-Register bears reprinting.

It was composed by the Reverend William E. Rose of the First Assembly of God: "Spying is risky, costly business. We were made newly aware of this in the Pueblo incident and now at even greater loss in terms of lives with the downing of the U. S. intelligence place off Korean waters.

"I've been asking 'How does a Christian view this matter, one brother spying on another?'

"Obviously the relationship of Christian and true brotherhood would make incidents like this totally unnecessary. But the problem arises in that the world is not Christian. The nations are not Christian and do not operate on the principles that make for peace.

"Some cry for us to stoy such spying. To do so would be national catastrophe. You can't force Christian principles (and that is what all the true principles of brotherhood are) and Unchristian people. My point is simply this: the business of the Christian Churchis not to stop the spying nor the wars nor the vice and crime. In short it is not to stop anything but to start an inward revolution.

"The gospel is the good news of a person and work that unities man with God and man with man in a heart-to-heart experience. To teach brotherhood is not enough. We have to be made brothers inwardly first.

"We need an inward revolution, a revolution of love. As long as the bulk of the world's leadership seeks military might as a means for peace, there will necessarily have to be intelligence operations spying on one another.

"There is great need for the Christian Church to rise to the crisis of the hour and proclaim the good news of a better way. This better way is found not only in the principles of Christianity, but also in the person, Christ, who said, 'I am the way, the truth, and the life."

Shouldn't all of us seek the inward revolution of which Mr. Rose speaks? Wouldn't it be a better world for all?

We have been giving a lot of thought to the demands of the black minorities in the college and universities.

The demand for a return to conditions that were in effect before the Civil Rights acts were passed.

We mean solid black housing, classes, fraternities and sororities.

We can understand their unhappiness with having to associate with the white students.

Our own local Black children still wish they were back in school in the Lincoln School instead of being bussed all over the district.

Maybe if the government would just let people live like and where they want to all folks might be happier in the long run.

STALIN'S DAUGHTER SAYS:

"I was brought up in a family where there was never any talk about God. But when I became a grown-up person I found that it was impossible to exist without God in one's heart. I came to that conclusion myself, without anybody's help or preaching. But that was a great change because since that moment the main dogmas of communism lost their significance for me."

IT TAKES MORE THAN FAITH

This has been a century of great medical advances. Smallpox, malaria, yellow fever and typhus have been conquered. Infant deaths have been reduced by half every two decades. Poliomyelitis has been virtually eliminated. Death rates have been sharply reduced from influenza, tuberculosis and rheumatic fever.

Behind the conquest of these diseases lies the faith of countless sufering individuals and their loved ones. But also the dedication and enterprise of scientists, doctors, professionals and laymen.

Among the diseases that still remain medical mysteries is one that is a greater crippler of young adults - multiple sclerosis. Some 500,000 Americans, mostly between the ages of 20 and 40, are afflicted with this debilitating disease, and related diseases. There is no known treatment.

No one knows how an individual becomes victimized by MS. No one knows a cure or preventive medical treatment. No one knows why this "foremost neurological problem of our time" is so devastating.

But the National Multiple Sclerosis Society - the only national voluntary health agency serving the needs in the field of multiple sclerosis and related diseases - is determined to find out. That is why for 23 years, since its founding in 1946, it is persistently underwritten a program of national and international research.

Over $8,900,000 has been expended on research projects and fellowship grants by the Society. Thanks to this, and the progress of many dedicated scientists, a breakthrough is anticipated by qualified observers. Victory over multiple sclerosis can and will be won because researchers now have the tools, the knowledge and the scientific and intellectual potential to conquer it.

Yes, faith helps. But funds are still needed if the scientists are going to be able to pursue the elusive crippler. That is why this year's MS Hope Chest Campaign (held between Mother's Day and Father's Day) is a crucial drive. Your contribution will help support the program of research, professional education, public education and patient services. All are needed to gain this victory over MS.

Keep your faith and your hope, but remember charity, too!

Maybe because we did not close for those who have died and were buried before is reason enough for some but not for us.

Maybe it was because the feeling that we have no business in Vietnam, but whatever the reason, we are ashamed by it.

TO THE VICTORS GO THE BILLS

The Republican Party, victorious in last November's presidential election, expects to net around $2 million from a $1,000 - a - plate fund-raising dinner in Washington on Wednesday, May 7. Five days later, on Monday, May 12, the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee will hold a fund-raising dinner in the capital to build up a kitty for the party's candidates for House and Senate races in the 1970 elections. Win or lose, in other words, politics costs money – lots of it.

How much? Campaign workers for the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, assassinated barely halfway through his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, estimated his debt for six state primary races at $3.5 million. For television time alone, the Republicans spent $5 million and the Democrats $3 million in the 1968 presidential campaign, according to the Federal Communications Commission. American Independent Party nominee George C. Wallace spent $681,491 for TV time, the FCC says.

Altogether, general election campaign spending in 1968 reported by national-level committees of the Democratic, Republican, and American Independent parties set a new record of $49.2 million. Such expenses are reported every four years amid cries of alarm and calls for reform of campaign spending laws. Just as predictably, the cries soon die down and are forgotten along with the quadrennial proposals for reducing the political money squeeze.

The Committee for Economic Development last December issued a report proposing 10 ways of "Financing a Better Election System." The first proposal called for an "outright 50 per cent tax credit (or rebate) . . . against the annual federal income tax on all political contributions up to $50 for each taxpayer (maximum credit $25)." In view of currently rising costs of goods and credit, this seems like not much of an incentive. The Proposal has, indeed, been forgotten -- at least until 1972.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Work, not alcohol or drugs, has always been the most popular narcotic in America. We are a work-addicted people, as witness the number of men who fear compulsory retirement at 65 because they feel they'll be lost without the stimulation provided by going to a daily job.

It seems like years since we've seen an old-fashioned hairpin. Don't women ever wear them anymore?

Strawberries and modern children have one thing in common: the bigger they grow the more tasteless some of them become.

The height of boredom comes when a fellow suddenly discovers he has been talking to himself—but not bothering to listen.

The more scientific we become the more stubbornly we stick to our timeworn superstitions. If you put a large ladder across a sidewalk, eight out of 10 passers-by will walk around rather than under it. The two who do walk under it aren't any less superstititous than the others— they're just probably showoffs.

People who crave the limelight go through endless maneuvers to become the center of attention at a cocktail party, but the simplest of all ways to do it is to get an attack of hiccups.

The suspicion arises that many folks who attend church today do so because it is the one public place left where they run a minimal danger of being mugged.

There are two good reasons why housewives live longer than their husbands: (1) they can flop down on a couch any time during the day when they are tired, and (2) they avoid the physical wear and tear of the two-and three-Martini lunch, which ages executives quicker than anything.

The biggest problem facing educators today is how to find a way to convince the students that there is a real difference between going to college and going to kindergarten.

The loneliest people I know are those wealthy enough to attend public banquets frequently, but so poverty-stricken in real companionship that they can't think of anything better to do with their time. I always think they'd be happier if they learned to hook rugs and stayed at home with the cat.

The meek may indeed sometime inherit the earth, but the odds are against them holding it undisturbed for very long.

When a guy becomes so confirmed a bachelor that he carries safety pins in his pocket, a girl is wasting her time trying to lure him into matrimony.

Maturity is that stage in life you reach when you decide that it is more fun to watch the world go to the dogs than try to reform it yourself single-handed.

He licks my hand and rubs my knees,
And, incidentally, gives me fleas.

"I don't agree with your theory of prenatal influence," said the young lady as she sipped her tea. "Take my case, for example. My mother was accidently hit with a phonograph record just before I was born, but it hasn't done me any harm, any harm, any harm."

PATRIOTISM AND PROFIT-MOTIVE

Business enterprise in Republic USA finds itself at the crossroads of its very existence. Business, which under our individual-initiative, profit-motive system means millions of individuals, must make a choice of following the wrong lane to its destruction or the right lane to survival and new achievement.

Business has sought every possible customer in its effort to make every possible dollar, refusing to participate in or use programs with a patriotic theme for fear of losing a few sales dollars and arousing threats of boycott from the far left. As further concessions, business spends fabulous sums in sponsoring some programs which sadly have a positive anti-American propaganda line.

This is done on the terrifying presumption, which appears to be too true, that good patriotic citizens will NOT complain. This business presumes to keep the vocally noisy and influential pinks in silent appeasement.

Business has not considered how it will explain its total demise under socialism by whatever name socialism may masquerade. Stockholders and citizens are going to ask: "What destroyed the capitalistic system that made progress possible? What caused the political and economic debacle that annihilated our systems, our company and every other firm which we built on the solid virtues of earnest work, individual effort, courage to invest and to produce a better product or service under the goad of personal competition?"

Patriots and Freedom-enthusiasts believe that the American consumer, the sovereign customers of business, would walk another block or drive an extra mile to spend their money with a firm which believes in our Republic. Business must take a choice, and so on, of saving America with its mass of customers, or business may choose to keep the vocal wrong-siders on its books. The predictable result is the loss of books, business and all. The splendid patriots who have carried the load for all of us all these years must be reinforced. HLH

By Drew Pearson

Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson say: Agnew can't escape his oil friends; his PR man on New England trip was Sinclair employee; utility lobby blocks savings to consumers

WASHINGTON--Vice President Spiro Agnew has been working much harder at his job than most people realize. It's not an easy job. Under the constitution the chief duty of the Vice President is, in effect, waiting for the president to die--which isn't a happy assignment. His other duty is presiding over the Senate--which is boring. Nevertheless, Agnew has been very conscientious.

However, he can't seem to escape his oil friends.

After issuing indignant denials when this column reported on his meeting with oil magnates in Midland, Tex., the Vice President turned up in New England last month with a representative of Sinclair Oil handling his public relations.

As a result, New Englanders increased their skepticism regarding Agnew's denial that he had promised Texas oilmen that the free port at Machiasport, Me., would be blocked. Texas oilmen want to Near East oil entering a free port in New England where hitherto they had the market to themselves.

The Sinclair Oil representative who handled Agnew's public relations, Spencer Schedler, was quite dictatorial about them. He had an air of proprietorship about him. He admonished newspapermen that there could be no pictures taken at the Vice President's dinner, land limited press questions.

Reaction to the Agnew-Sinclair visit was not good. The Portsmouth, N.H., Herald published an editorial headlined "the stench of oil smothered Agnew's visit to Manchester." It read:

"Don't sniff now--it might gag you -- but if your nostrils are beginning to detect a faint whiff]or oil in the air, particularly when the wind is from the West, they could be right.

--New England Indignation--

"What your nose is catching is the aftermath of the visit of Vice President Agnew to Manchester Tuesday.

"If New England really needed confirmation of the article Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson wrote a few weeks ago concerning the Vice President and the deal he proposed to an assemblage of oilmen, it was there for all to see.

"Managing the Agnew advance public relations was one Spencer Schedler, who described himself as 'On Vacation' from his job with Sinclair Oil.

"Would someone please tell us why Vice President Agnew--with the administrative appropriation he gets--needs someone from Sinclair Oil to handle his relations with the press?

"The reader with a memory will recall that it was Sinclair Oil that threatened to bring an injunction against the foreign trade zone for Machiasport, and representatives of Sinclair were undoubtedly present at the meeting described by Pearson.

"In that article, Pearson made the flat statement that Agnew told a covey of oilmen that if they would financially back the Nixon campaign they could consider occidental petroleum's Machiasport plan as dead.

"Belatedly, Agnew expressed the hope no one from occidental was at the meeting, only to discover that there was."

--No Utility Cuts--

There's a tax sleeper inside the house ways and means committee that will cost gas, electricity and telephone users around half a billion dollars a year.

The sleeper is so complicated that consumers won't understand it and neither do some members of the ways and means committee. However, the utility lobbyists have been so astute in pushing the amendment that it will probably pass.

It would prohibit the federal communications commission and the federal power commission, plus state regulatory commissions, from requiring that the benefits of rapid depreciation for tax purposes be passed on to consumers in the form of lower rates.

This would prevent the FCC from going ahead with a pending American telephone and telegraph rate investigation which could result in cutting the Bell System's long distance rates by around $180 million a year. It would also prevent the California public utilities commission from going ahead with a rate reduction of $120 million this yeear. Natural gas pipeline customers would forfeit reductions of $138 million a year and electricity consumers $558 million annually.

For years American Tel and Tel has been trying to block the FCC's power to regulate phone rates.

Ex-Sen. Clarence Dill of Washington, author of the federal communications act, tells how he was pressured to eliminate any regulation of telephone rates from the original bill which he drafted.

"Sen. Alben Barkley of Kentucky came to see me opposing it," says Sen. Dill. "Alben was a great guy, but I could tell the telephone lobbyists had come to see him. He argued that phone rates should be locally regulated.

"After that Millard Tydings of Maryland came around to say the same thing.

"I knew the Telephone Company received a lot of patents from the navy after World War I for nothing and that they couldn't stand an investigation of this. So I introduced a resolution calling for an investigation. Shortly thereafter the lobbyist for the telephone company came around to see me and complained: "What are you trying to do to us?'

"I think the public ought to know how you obtained those patents," I said.

"Will you drop your investigation if we drop our opposition to the communications act?' The AT&T lobbyist said.

" 'No,' I replied, 'But I'll be so busy passing the bill that I probably won't have time to go through with the investigation."

This is how the FCC's authority to regulate phone rates was passed in the first place. The present sleeper before the ways and means committee would modify the benefits of this authority.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

TRIPPING UP KENNEDY:

Barry Goldwater Jr.'s Win Delights Businessmen Who Now Plan to Capture Senate for Nixon.

Washington, D.C.: When Barry Goldwater Senior asked Barry Goldwater Junior what he could do for him during the son's race for Congress, the 30-year-old candidate advised:

"Send me money and stay out of California."

The junior senator from Arizona, chuckling all the while, told me that's exactly what he did – except for a short personal mission which took him to the state.

"Now there are two of us," says the once-upon - a - time presidential candidate, "and I don't know if Washington can stand it but we'll sure try to make a go of it."

Mr. Goldwater was not the only one who sent along some money. A modest sum came from a comparatively new political fraternity called BIPAC -- Business - Industry Political Action Committee. They wanted the 30-year-old Goldwater because they believe he's "intelligently conservative and objectively business - oriented."

And that's BIPAC's bag, as the new university English has it. BIPAC's 50-man board of directors, headquartered in New York City, believes it has the same inherent civil right to campaign for a business - oriented Congress as the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education has to campaign for liberal and labor control of the national legislature.

So BIPAC is raising a million - dollar campaign fund to back up its sentiments.

"We have no reason to conceal anything," says BIPAC's small band of cool strategists. "We give the money and the local business community buys broadcast time or door bell ringers, or spends it in any fashion it believes will help the business - oriented candidates. We're out in the open. We report the contributions.

"We have spent most of our time explaining to business leaders what BIPAC is. Now they know. They are in politics. Ours is a low visibility growth compared to labor's COPE. But we are in politics to stay. And we must be doing something right. We've had inquiries from businessmen as far off as Italy and Japan, and as near as Canada, asking how we do it."

For BIPAC, 1969 is the only year of the political heats. The 1970 big congressional race is the thing on which to spend that million dollars.

BIPAC's low-voiced, soft-sell politicalized businessmen have done their homework.

They believe that a shift of four Senate seats can tie up the tallies in the upper house and give Vice President Agnew the tie-breaking vote on organizaiton in January of '71. That could give powerful committee chairmen to the Republicans and President Nixon in the second half of the presidential term.

BIPAC's businessmen note, too, that many intimates and political allies of Ted Kennedy will be running in '70 for reelection or for higher office.

And BIPAC wants to trip them up before the main dash in '72.

There is, for example, the 34-year-old Congressman John Tunney, son of the ex-heavyweight world champ Gene Tunney. By 1970 he will have three terms behind him. The first time on the hustings he had Ted Kennedy with him. And that brought in the votes. Now Mr. Tunney plans to run against Republican Sen. George Murphy, who'll be 68 by campaign time next year. This is an election into which the businessmen of BIPAC plan to move.

There's also Ted Kennedy's good friend, Sen. Joseph Tydings of oyster- laden Maryland. His term is up in '70. BIPAC would like to make that permanent -- and will try.

One of the shaky ones, BIPAC believes, is Sen. Charles Goodell, whom Gov. Nelson Rockefeller appointed to complete Bob Kennedy's term. What is referred to, often in awe, as the Kennedy machine, is being primed to run the energetic, though still little-known young senator into permanent obscurity. BIPAC will make its "modest contribution" in that New York race too, say the business leaders, who are for Mr. Goodell's election, though they consider him now more liberal than he was in the House of Representatives.

They reckon, as they make the rounds of major cities for conferences with business leader, that the Kennedy machine would be considerably slowed down if it were beaten in a series of such races where defeat of "a friend of Ted's" would be publicly and widely interpreted as a defeat for the young man from Massachusetts.

As for control of the Senate, this is possible because BIPAC considers many of the party's term - enders quite vulnerable. Among those who will be fought by the businessmen's Political Action Committee are Senators Tom Dodd, Holland, Hartke, Tydings, Hart, Cannon, Williams, Montoya, Burdick, Young, Gore, Yarborough, Moss, and McGee.

All are intense liberals except for Sen. Holland of Florida. But he will be 78 by campaign time and may retire.

BIPAC, in whose headquarters there never is the voluble aggressiveness of labor's COPE, would like to retire the rest. That would give the Barry Goldwaters a lot more company. And it would make things more comfortable for Richard Nixon too.

It does look like Barry Goldwater Jr.'s successful race in January of '71. That could give powerful committee chairmen to the Republicans and President Nixon in the second of the big shows in '70 and '72.

In this lesson we will seek to know; what Jesus thought of the scriptures, the Bible, how much value He gave them. Some have been guilty of saying, "you can prove anything by the Bible." This, to say the least, is certainly a reproach upon the holy character of the Bible's author, God; and a reflection upon His infinite wisdom. None of us would want word to get around that, "you can prove anything by him or her." And certainly we shouldn't think of God, nor His word in this manner. Christ didn't consider the scriptures of God, the Bible, as a medium to prove everything; nor do we, who follow Him, believe that man can prove anything he wants to, by the scriptures. But we do believe that the scriptures have proven themselves over and over again, to be infallible, as a guide, in things pertaining to God and eternity. In essence the scriptures reveal, we believe, "that God is," and that He is, "the rewarder of those who diligently seek him." (Heb. 11:6) This of course, involves, all the information necessary concerning God, His reward, and all the information necessary about man and why he needs to seek God, to enjoy the rewards; also, the way to seek God is made abundantly clear.

How did Jesus look at the scriptures? The person who calls himself a Christian, is claiming to be a follower of Jesus Christ. He is then, committed to a position of respect for the standard of values portrayed by Christ. The Christian has the solution to the question, "What should my attitude be regarding the scriptures?" He only has to learn the attitude that Christ had in this matter. And any person, after learning of the attitude and judgements of Jesus, and still does not know what position to take, admits thereby that he does not follow Jesus Christ, and is not worthy to wear the name Christian. Questions which pose a problem to all serious students of religion is: "What about the scriptures, what respect must we have for them, are they reliable, can they be taken literally????" The Christian will be guided in this matter, as in all others, by the respect he has for the judgements of Christ. He is content to ask, "What did Jesus think, and what use did He make of them?" Let us remember, that the same critical questions that are now raised against the scriptures, could have been raised in Jesus' day. Christ set the pattern of attitude for us. And every doctrinal difference we may have can be traced to our attitude toward what God has said, in His word. Would Jesus accept the position taken by many today, that all religions are all right? For the answer to this question read Matthew 15:3-9, also verse 13. (This lesson to be continued).

Ann Landers

Diabetes Is An Illness

Dear Ann Landers: I am 19 and have decided that in September I will enter the seminary to begin my study for the priesthood. I've thought about this for a long time and it's what I really want.

No problem? Not quite. Since August I've been dating a lovely girl. I love her, Ann, and I know she loves me. How do I tell her of my decision to become a priest? I've tried but nothing can make me say it.

I continued to date her -- with lips sealed. I'd like to continue to date her until I leave for the seminary, and of course when I come home for vacations. Am I selfish? Have I really made up my mind? -- Dilemma

Dear Dil: I consulted with a Catholic priest who said: The longer you put off telling the youg lady of your plans, the less chance you have of becoming a priest. Furthermore, my consultants pointed out that you are not only selfish but dishonest. You want the enjoyment of the relationship but not the personal responsibility. The answer to your last question is emphatically no.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister is a wonderful gal but sometimes she acts as if she has the mind of a peanut. It's hard to believe she went to Wellesley.

Every week or ten days I get a letter from Sally. I wouldn't dare open the envelope in front of anyone because I never know what will fall out. She has written on brown paper sacks, shirt cards and Unitarian Church bulletins (scrawled in heavy ink over the type) Yesterday I received an eight-page letter on paper toweling -- the kind you find in a washroom.

I've never said a word about her kooky writing paper but maybe it's time I spoke up. Yes or no? -- Sick Of Surprises

Dear S.O.S.: Sally probably enjoys an offbeat trademark and there's nothing wrong with it - but if it bugs you, send her some stationery. You can buy a big box at the dime store for less than a dollar.

Dear Ann Landers: You made a grave error and I hope you will be big enough to admit it. In replying to "St. Louis Woman," you said: "Diabetes is an illness." This is not true. Diabetes is the malfunction of the pancreas gland.

My grandson has diabetes and he is an excellent student and cannot be considered sick by any standard. Doctors will also tell you that diabetics are usually more intelligent than others.

Please print this letter and set the record straight. -- Upholder Of Accuracy

Dear Up: Many people who have diabetes function extremely well and do not consider themselves sick. And this is good.

But by definition diabetes is an illness. There actually are two unrelated diseases with the name - diabetes mellitus, caused by the failure of the pancreas to produce insulin; and diabetes insipidus, which is related to a disorder of the central nervous system. The former disease is what is commonly meant by the term diabetes. As you say, thousands of people live happy, productive lives in spite of it, and I'm sure your grandson will do very well.

How will you know when the real things comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Realignment Ball Still in the Air

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle has moved to within 24 hours of running with the realignment ball himself and personally selecting the three National Football League teams that have to switch to the American Football League.

Rozelle made that revelation himself at the end of an 11-hour day of talks with both NFL and AFL club owners Thursday in yet another session of the marathon pro football meetings that now have lasted almost two months and been held on both coasts of the United States.

Admitting that "I don't have a firm commitment from any club" to move, Rozelle said he felt a solution had to be reached by Saturday at the latest and if the NFL owners could not select the three teams "I am prepared to pick them."

The owners have been meeting on a solution to the realignment problem since mid-March when they originally sat down in Palm Springs, Calif. They held a second session last week and then reconvened again Wednesday.

The only hard fact that has evolved in the almost two months of talks is that realignment almost certainly will be accomplished by shifting three teams from the 16-team NFL into the 10-team AFL to form two conferences of 13 teams each.

Asked if he had the power to step in, Rozelle replied:

"They (the owners) may give it to me or I may insist upon having it. In that case I think I can get it."

Rozelle said he had spent some time considering his three candidates for a shift but declined to specify any of his choices or speak in other than generalities about what factors would be taken into consideration.

The teams most prominently mentioned in speculation have been Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Minnesota and St. Louis, but Rozelle said only three teams actually will not be considered for a move—New York, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"One way or another," Rozelle insisted, "we'll have a decision by Saturday."

Ricketts Keeps Red Birds Sharp With Jokes, Ribbing

By CHARLIE BAROUH
Associated Press
Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS AP - "Hicks," said third-string catcher Dave Ricketts to reserve outfielder Jim Hicks, "there are two kinds of players on this team.

Jim Hicks

"The kind that plays and doesn't help the team, and the kind that doesn't play and doesn't help the team. Now, pretty soon," Ricketts added, "you're going to be with me in the second group."

Hicks stared, laughed, and tried to think of a come-back. He couldn't but that night he helped throw out two baserunners to preserve a shutout for Bob Gibson and the St. Louis Cardinals. Ricketts was back at it the next day.

"Was it Eddie Stanky who said it takes a big man to go out there and play this game when he's not hitting?" Ricketts asked. "Hicks, it took a big man to go out there and go out for-4 and threw out those two runners."

Ricketts may be in the backline of players on the St. Louis Cardinals, but he's in the forefront of the needlers on the team. The 33-year-old product of Duquesne University has ridden the bench and players alike during the Cardinals' past two pennant - winning seasons. He's the ringleader of laughs on the Cardinals.

Now that the Cardinals - whom most experts picked to win everything but the Kentucky Derby - are in fifth place in National League's eastern division, the laughter is just as loud and much more important.

"When you're losing it's like this," Ricketts said. "You know the way this game goes. It can change overnight, so you don't ever get down on yourself, I can remember over the last two years some real bad slumps it didn't look like we'd ever get over.

"But we stayed together and pulled ourselves out. And we did it because we could laugh at our mistakes and bounce back. If we can't sit down and laugh and talk to keep morale up, then we should have quit a week ago."

Ricketts, who has earned the respect of teammates with his baseball knowledge, knows his place is in the bullpen, or on the bench. The wise-cracking Cardinals make sure everyone knows exactly what he's supposed to do.

"With guys like Tim McCarver and Joe Torre, I know I'm not going to play much," Ricketts, said, "but everybody is here for a purpose and everybody here has ability. The whole thing is, not one should wants to sit on the bench. You don't make money there, but you have to do something to keep your spirits up, because if you don't, you'll go plumb out of your mind."

Though the wisecracks seem to fly around the room with as much organization as a shotgun blast, there's a very strict routine in the kidding.

"I just walk around and look and then I'll see somebody, but I won't say anything for a couple of days," Ricketts explained.

"Then we'll all get on him and make a joke of it. If you lose, you wait till the next day and let the guy get himself together.

"If a guy is doing something consistently wrong, you make a joke of it and pretty soon he might say to himself: 'Hey, maybe I am doing something wrong.'"

A new player on the Cardinals waits for the baiting and accepts it, usually with deep appreciation.

"It used to be that the new guys would get stuck in a corner and never say anything," Ricketts said. "But here, during batting practice, or fielding practice, we get on them and we're sort of saying: "We know you're around, don't let yourself get down.' If you don't get ripped, you'd go into a corner and say, 'Maybe I'm not worth it.' So we just go from the bottom to the top and get on everybody.

"But when we leave this locker room, we're all pulling for each other, because we know we need each other to win. Like Lou Brock, who's having a tough time now. Everybody is pulling for him, because we know as soon as he gets going, we'll start moving.

"The thing about this ball club is, it takes care of its own. A guy here doesn't have a chance to get down or loaf, because in the next couple of days it's going to come back at him as a joke."

Alcindor Draws Praise From Lakers' Jerry West

by MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Lew Alcindor can't miss making it big in the National Basketball Association, says Jerry West.

"I think he's going to be the most valuable player in the league," said the superstar of the Los Angeles Lakers today.

Here to receive a car as the outstanding player of the recent NBA final playoff series between the Lakers and the winning Boston Celtics, West was asked whom he would pick first if he had to select a pro team today.

"Lew Alcindor," he replied without hesitation.

"I've watched him play and he can do everything. He has Bill Russell's agility. He is quick, has great hands, can shoot and is an unselfish player.

"His one weakness is rebounding. For a guy his size he doesn't do enough. But with competition that will improve.

The 22-year-old Alcindor, a towering 7-foot-1 1/2 235-pounder from UCLA, recently signed a multi-year contract calling for an estimated $1.4 million with the NBA's Milwaukee Bucks.

The 30-year-old Laker sharpshooter sang Alcindor's praises after reporters had asked him to compare teammate Wilt Chamberlian, 32 7-1, 275 pounds, and Russell, 35-year-old playing coach of the Boston Celtics who is 6-9 and weighs 220. Chamberlain, 32 7-1, 275 pounds, and Russell, 35-year-old playing coach of the Boston Celtics who is 6-9 and weighs 220.

"Wilt Chamberlain is a better all-around player than Russell," said West. "He's a better scorer and rebounder and I think he even blocks more shots than Russell.

"But for the one guy for the one game I'd have to pick Bill Russell. His record speaks for itself.

"If I had to say what the difference was in our final series, I'd say Bill Russell. He's a winner.

"And I'm not knocking Wilt. He's a great player but everyone says he's a loser. Well I'm a loser, too, and so is Elgin (teammate Elgin Baylor). We haven't beaten Boston and that's on thing I wanted most. I thought sure this was the year we were going to do it."

"West, hampered by a pulled hamstring muscle in his left leg in the final two games with Boston, scored 42 points, grabbed 13 rebounds and had 12 assists in the 108-106 losing seventh game with Boston.

The 6-3, 175-pound backcourt wizard set an NBA playoff record of 556 points. He scored 265 in the seven-game set with Boston for a 37.8 average.

"Jerry West is the most complete player in the NBA today —and maybe of all time," said his coach, Bill van Breda Kolff, at the luncheon honoring West Thursday.

West was presented with a 1969 Dodge Charger R-T by Sport Magazine. Jerry said he almost gagged when he was shown the car.

"My God, it was green—Boston Celtic green," he said.

Catcher Picks Up Mizzou Hopes

COLUMBIA — Few of Missouri's baseball players ever luxuriate in the security of a full scholarship. A slim budget keeps most of Coach John (Hi) Simmons' athletes on economy rations.

Mark it down that Steve Earl Patchin, freshman catcher, will shake up the ol' establishment in 1969-70. The 195-pound backstop is a cinch to inflate Hi's outlay for the next three years.

Cheerfully, Mizzou's veteran coach can afford to upgrade his rugged backstop's talent fee. Little things impress Hi -- notably Patchin's team-leading .380 batting average as the Bengals barge into Manhattan for a K-State series this weekend.

The 195-pounder from Joplin, Mo., also leads the club in runs, hits, homers and is tied with outfielder Del Blunk for the most runs - batted - in.

"At Joplin, we have a baseball program for anyone from 7 through 19 years of age," he explained. "There's more than one organized league at the different levels -- and a baseball school for 5- and - 6 year olds. I coached in that last summer."

Steve's early tutelage came from his father, Earl, a postal supervisor and his coach in those formative years. An uncle, Ed Patchin, once played professionally in the New York Yankee system.

Except for a brief exposure as a pitcher, Steve has concentrated on the catching trade. Along the way he's had good guidance.

"My Legion coach used to be a pro catcher -- Earl Skaggs. When I was younger, I liked to watch Yogi Berra behind the plate. Those were the years when the Yankees had the best teams."

"They might have resented it, but they didn't show it. In fact, the older catchers really helped me a lot during fall workouts."

Batting fourth for Mizzou's light - hitting entry all spring, Patchin has smacked 27 base-hits in 71 trips to the plate. Three of his blows have been home runs. Only one other Missourian, outfielder Paul Frisch, is batting respectably at .308.

In the Big Eight compilations, where only conference games are figured, Steve is hitting .392 -- third - best in the league.

Trouble is, K-State has several sluggers of the Patchin stripe hitting equally well. Three rate among the loop's top five this week -- Bill Huisman (.415), Bob Randall (.381) and Bob Gartner (.375).

"And that group doesn't even include Woolsey," notes Coach Simmons. "He's as dangerous a hitter as there is in the league."

With Ol' Mizzou (9-6) and Kansas State (6-5) jousting for third place, Simmons plans to pitch Bob Sheetz and lefty Tom Lundgren in Friday's double - header. Al Bush, a sophomore left-hander, may draw the Saturday call "depending on how Lundgren fares against those tough-hitting lefties in the K-State order."

Coach Bob Brasher's outfit is ripping away at a .287 pace, best in the Big Eight, but the Purple pitchers show the poorest earned run average -- a composite 5.85.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- The University of Missouri - St. Louis biology department offers one of the nation's few electron microscopy programs for undergraduates.

Using a special, miniature electron microscope, students learn fundamentals before performing analysis on the large UMSL Hitachi electron scope, which can magnify objects 2.5 million times.

The program is especially valuable for biology major who plan to pursue graduate studies since proficiency in electron microscopy is usually necessary at that level of study.

ROLLA, Mo. -- A major project of the University of Missouri - Rolla centennial development fund is a new university center which will be a social, cultural and civic center. It will provide a divided multi-purpose facility that can seat more than 800 for food services and more than 1,500 for general meetings. The planned facility will contain a cafeteria, a browsing library, music room, art exhibition area, faculty and student facilities, organization and alumni offices and student lounges.

Henry Franklin turned a 22.7 time in at Cape Girardeau last week in the district that was good enough to rank second in the best times turned in in the 220-yard dash. The best mark was 22.4

Dr. Wayne Croom of Malden scored the first hole-in-one of the season Saturday afternoon at the Malden Country Club.

He scored the ace on the par three eighth hole with a four iron. Dr. Croom was playing in a foursome with Clarence Kilmer, Tudor Willis and Herb Adams.

Sikeston will return 16 lettermen in football next season, including Mike Harris and Turner Marshall, who were named All-Conference in 1968.

The football scheduled for 1969 shows nine games with an open date November 7.

Bill Priday will serve as the new SHS grid mentor.

An afternoon game is set for Oct. 4 with Parkway West.

Tryouts for Oran Little League will be held on Monday, May 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the ball diamond. Age limit for those acceptable will be between the ages of 9 and 13. Lawrence Seyer, one of the coaches, said all boys who will be 9 by July 31st and will not be 13 before August 1st will be eligible.

The Cardinals will be coached by Rodger Campbell and J. R. Tomlin; the Yankees by Lawrence Seyer and Robey LeGrant; the Dodgers by Melvin Hamm, with one coach to be selected, and the White Sox, will be coached by Phillip Walter and Larry G. Eftink.

Doyle Denbow was chosen Commissioner. Mr. Denbow is the newly arrived Principal of Oran R-3 High School and formerly of Chaffee.

Weight classes in wrestling have been revised for the 1969-70 season nd protective head-gear has been made mandatory. These were the major changes by the high school division of the national wrestling rules committee at meetings held in late March and early April and released recently.

Weight classifications for the 1969-70 season will be as follows: 98, 107, 115, 123, 130, 137, 145, 155, 165, 175, 185 and unlimited. The divisions started at 95 in recent years and followed with 103, 112, 120, 127, 133, 138, 145, 154, 165, 175 and unlimited.

There has been divided opinion on the 95-pound class in recent years and the increase to 98-pounds appears to be a compromise between those who wanted its elimination and those who wanted to keep it unchanged.

The rule on headgear was actually placed in the rules in 1968-69 as being optional. It has now been made mandatory for the 1969-70 season.

Other rules changes were:

1. A larger wrestling area is recommended even though the circular 28-foot and square 24-foot mats will continue to be legal. The rules will recommend, however, that a 32-foot wrestling area (circle or square) be utilized.

2. Out-of-bounds interpretation has been simplified. If either wrestler has supporting parts inside the boundary line, wrestling is to continue.

3. Flagrant misconduct provisions have been re-worded, and the awarding of points clarified.

4. Application of the guillotine will be considered potentially dangerous when the arm of the defensive wrestler is forced beyond its normal range of movement.

5. Wrestling is to continue while warning and penalizing a defensive wrestler for stalling.

Plant a tree if you're looking for a good supply of fishing bait. Or you might consider going hunting with a tin can and flashlight the next time a thunderstorm comes along.

Although these may not sound like ways to get bait, they are helpful in assuring a supply of worms for summer angling.

Fishermen who plant trees will make sure they have at least one catalpa tree in the yard. For this is the source of the long, green catalpa worms considered a delectable dish by many species of fresh water fish.

Catalpa worms are the larval stage of sphinx moths. They often grow three inches long and are found only on catalpa trees, their sole source of food. They are harvested by shaking the tree and picking up worms that fall to the ground.

Keeping them is easy. A box with catalpa leaves in the bottom works fine. To save them for later use, put them in a can with some cornmeal and keep the can refrigerated. They can be strung on the hook like an ordinary fishing worm.

At night, during a heavy rain storm, earth worms will come out of the ground and lay on top of the grass or just underneath. Many of them will travel, moving out onto concrete driveways and streets curbs. All you need do is don a raincoat, grab a can and flashlight and pick up a good start on your summer's bait supply. During prolonged storms, you can repeatedly return to the same driveway, finding a fresh supply of worms each time.

Perspective, the impression of depth in a two-dimensional surface, is achieved through the use of a vanishing point, the point where any set of parallel lines will seem to converge. The World Almanac notes that this method for creating linear perspective was devised by the Florentine architect, Filippo Brunelleschi (1377-1446).

Spring Grid Drills End For Big 8 Schools

The other four Big Eight schools held their annual spring games last Saturday and have completed spring practice.

At Oklahoma, Coach Chuck Fairbanks will send his Sooner varsity against a strong alumni team headed by Bobby Boyd, Mike Ringer, Ron Shoots, Bob Harrison, Jim Grisham, Granville Liggins, Clendon Thomas and other former OU stars. The OU varsity won 44-26 last year for five wins in a row, but the alumns lead the series, 12-8.

Oklahoma was believed to be loaded offensively but facing problems on defense when spring practice began. Things have worked out to be the reverse, however.

"We don't have much of a chance against the competition we have to play unless our offense improves one thousand per cent between now and next season," said Fairbanks. "Our defense has outfought our offense."

Colorado's alumni series has been a close one, with each side winning three games since Coach Eddie Crowder initiated the game in 1963. The Old Grads won 23-0 last year against a varsity team handicapped by the absence of quarterback Bobby Anderson, who was playing baseball.

Anderson, the Big Eight's total offense leader, will direct the Buffalo varsity this time and will oppose alumni quarterback Bernie McCall, the Big Eight passing leader three years ago.

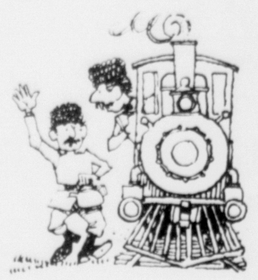
Eddie Dove and Boyd Dowler will coach the Colorado alumni.

Most of the attention in Kansas State's intra-squad game will center on quarterback Lynn Dickey, the Big Eight's passing leader last year as a sophomore.

But Coach Vince Gibson will be more concerned with the Wildcats' running attack and defense. Russell Harrison, Mike Montgomery and junior college transfer Henry Hawthorne have impressed Gibson as runners, while two other juco transfers, tackle Ron Yankowski and defensive back Tom Roberts, have bolstered the defense.

At Nebraska, where Coach Bob Devaney is trying to regroup the Cornhuskers after two "off" years of 6-4 records, the big question has been at quarterback. Frank Patrick, outstanding as a sophomore two years ago and disappointing last year when Ernie Sigler beat him out, has been No. 1 most of spring practice.

The Huskers have 31 lettermen back, including halfback star Joe Orduna, end Jim McFarland, linebacker Ken Gedes and defensive back Dana Stephensson - the latter two all-Big Eight choices last fall.



Virtually every railroad station in Russia has a hot water faucet. The custom is for railroad passengers to carry their own dry tea, and brew it during stops.

3 Lilbourn Teachers Retire

By NADINE TOWNSEND

LILBOURN — When the final school bell rings this year at the Lilbourn schools, three teachers, with a total of 99 teaching years in the schools here, will retire.

A brother nd sister team, Owen J. Taul and Miss Appalone Taul, each have served 35 years and Curtis Cross has 24 years service in the Lilbourn system.

Taul and his sister, Miss Appalone, came to the Lilbourn system in 1934.

He has served as principal of the high school for 31 years and superintendent for four years, from 1942-46, in the absence of Lynn Twitty, who was in the armed forces.

After high school, he attended Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau and received his teaching degree. He later received his Master's degree from the University of Missouri.

In 1964 he was selected "Teacher of the Year" by the Southeast Missouri Teachers Association.

Active in Scouting, Taul organized Lilbourn Boy Scout Troop 50 in 1940 and has been scoutmaster of the troop since that time. He plans to continue with the troop after retirement.

In 1946 he received the Silver Beaver award, the Southeast Missouri Area Council's highest for his work in Scouting.

When he takes his troop of Scouts to Camp Lewallen this year it will be his 27th year to spend a week in Boy Scout camp. He has also attended two National Boy Scout Jamborees.

Always active in community affairs, he received the Legion of Honor award in 1966 for 25 years service to the Lilbourn Kiwanis Club.

A past president of the Lilbourn organization, he served as Lieutenant Governor of the Missouri - Kansas - Arkansas Tri State organization in 1948. He has served as club secretary for 26 years.

A 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason, he is a past Master of the New Madrid Masonic Lodge.

"Although I am retiring from teaching, I will continue my work in Scouting, and continue to share my responsibility in community affairs," he said.

Miss Taul, also a native of Canalou, graduated from Sikeston high school. Her BS degree in education was received from Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau. She did graduate work at the University of Missouri.

Her major is in Social Studies and she has a permanent secondary teaching certificate in biology, American History, World History, Geography, American Problems, Citizenship and Health. She also holds a permanent elementary certificate.

She began her teaching career in Lilbourn as an elementary teacher in 1934. For the past few years, she has taught eighth grade Social Studies, reading and spelling.

A dedicated teacher, she believes in hard work and strict discipline.

Miss Taul has served as a class sponsor of grades 9, 10, 11 and 12 throughout her time at Lilbourn.

An active community worker, she is a charter member of the Lilbourn Civic Improvement Club.

Curtis Cross began his teaching 42 years ago in Miller County, Mo., where he taught for 11 years. From there, he went to Freemont in Carter County where he taught for six years. Later he taught one year in Oregon County, and came to Lilbourn in 1944, where he has taught 24 continuous years.

His final year in teaching has been with a sixth grade.

He has three daughters, two sons and 16 grandchildren.

The retiring teachers will be honored by the school faculty at a potluck dinner 7 p.m. Tuesday at the school cafeteria.

Rare indeed is the school that has the services of such dedicated teachers as Owen Taul, Miss Appalone Taul and Curtis Cross, but Lilbourn has been blessed with these three. Their loss will leave a vacuum that will be hard to fill.

TRUMAN

EARLY VENTURE in the haberdashery business in Kansas City did well at first, but failed in the depression of 1921-22. Truman, left, and partner Eddie Jacobson had to sell out, heavily in debt.

KEEPING HIS HAND IN, the old warrior met with Democratic candidates Humphrey and Muskie during last year's campaign. More in party spirit than prophetic wisdom, Truman said he was standing between two winners.

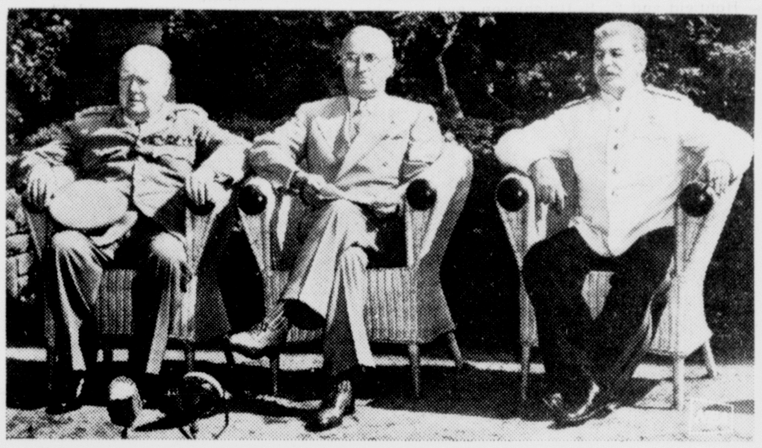
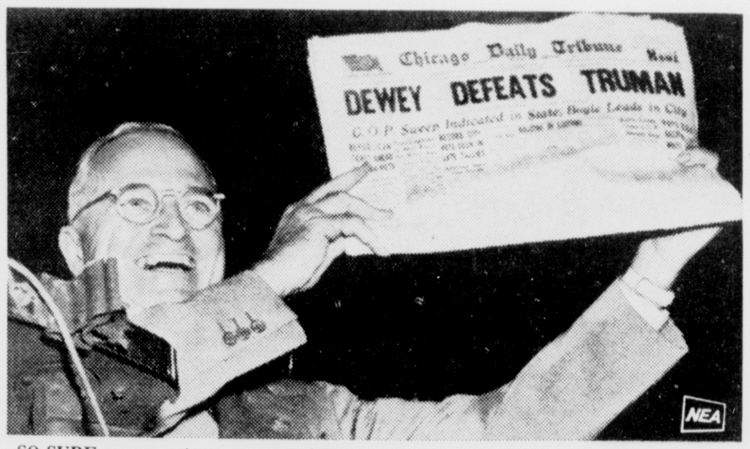
AMID A HUSHED GATHERING of Cabinet members and leading congressmen, Harry S. Truman takes the oath of president of the United States, administered by Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone. Sudden death of Franklin D. Roosevelt on April 12, 1945, thrust world leadership upon Truman at the climax of World War II.

PROBABLY THE BEST MUSICIAN ever to become U.S. president, Truman played the piano since childhood. At a 1945 Press Club Canteen, HST's keyboard efforts got an attractive assist from then film-newcomer Lauren Bacall, a la Helen Morgan.



POTSDAM CONFERENCE in 1945 brought freshman world leader Truman in contact with veterans Churchill and Stalin. The man referred to as "little" discovered he was the tallest of the Big Three and was amused to learn that Churchill and Stalin preferred photos that concealed their slight stature.



SO SURE were most newspapers of Thomas E. Dewey's victory over Truman in 1948, some announced the fact even though HST led the balloting from the start. The victory, a result of Truman's no-holds-barred, "give-'em-hell" campaign, was the upset of the century.

STRONG WILLS CLASHED when Gen. Douglas MacArthur failed to clear Korean war policy through the White House. Truman raised but survived a political storm by recalling the Far East commander in 1951.

A SOLDIER STILL, the former Chief Executive, a captain in World War I, inspects a Marine honor guard during a return visit this April to his favorite vacation spot of White House days—Key West, Fla.

Harry S. Truman has asked only that Americans remember him in the terms of his favorite epitaph, which he saw in Tombstone, Ariz.: "Here Lies Jack Williams. He Done His Damnedest." In the "Oxford History of the American People," however, author Samuel Eliot Morison says, ". . . with more fateful decisions than almost any president in our time, he made the fewest mistakes." An enviable record for a man who didn't go to college, but possessed a rare, invaluable political weapon–the gift of overt honesty.

Students Remember Mother's Day Is Sunday

SUNDAY IS THE DAY set aside to honor mothers all over America.

"Why should mothers be honored?"

Many reasons are quite evident, although not always realized. Mothers care for their children's cuts and bruises, teach them how to feed and dress themselves, and how to be mannerly young ladies and gentlemen.

Mothers wake their children up on school mornings, feed them their breakfast when they are too sleepy to eat, and struggle with wet, muddy boots when they come in from school on rainy afternoons.

"Who else would come to school at 3:30 and wait half an hour while her son or daughter attends a meeting that they failed to mention to her?"

"What person would tolerate the stereo turned on full blast?"

"Who else would keep dinner warm and waiting for her children who come home at different hours during the evening?"

Each person should remember his mother this Sunday. He should make a special effort to let her know that she is loved and appreciated.

SHS Students Are Active Participants In Athletics

SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL is fortunate to have a worthy and well-supported athletic program.

Football, basketball, wrestling, track, baseball, golf, and tennis are all extensive components of this system.

The variety of sports makes it possible for almost all boys who are interested in participating to choose a sport which appeal to him.

A large number of boys took advantage of this opportunity this year which created larger and more competitive squads.

In view of this exacting competition though, there was still room for the lower classmen and boys of somewhat limited ability.

This was caused by the fact that with the increased quantity of membes, deeper and more exacting clubs were formed.

This was also the basis on which a more extensive junior varsity system was set up.

Thus, despite the student's capabilities, he was able to find some place on one of the sundry teams.

In their participation on the squads these boys were endowed with a strong sense of school spirit and accomplishment.

School sports also give boys a chance to meet some of the best area and statewide competitors.

No matter to what degree of excellence a boy is able to reach, all participants who have been a part of Sikeston high school athletics should be congratulated for their interest and initiative to become a part of the school's athletic system.

Future Teachers Select Officers

Junior Janet Hedrick was elected president of the Future Teachers of America for the school year 1969-70. She succeeds Leslie Johnson who was the leader this year.

Jim Henzi was re-elected to the position of historian-reporter for the chapter. This is a new office created to make a record of the club's activities.

Sharon Steck was elected secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Offices of first and second-vice-presidents were tabled until the first meeting next fall because of an insufficient number of qualified candidates.

Incoming officers were formally inducted following elections.

Juniors Host Annual Prom

Junior-Senior Prom is scheduled for next Saturday evening in the high school cafetorium at 8 o'clock.

Junior homerooms are in charge of various committees to make the plans for the dance.

Students in the homeroom of Mrs. Tony Statler and Mrs. Bryan Snider will issue the invitations to the seniors and faculty next week.

Seniors are urged to attend the prom because it is held in their honor and juniors are also encouraged to be present.

Group Meets For Dress Code Plans

Homeroom presidents met with student body officers Monday morning to begin the formulation of a student dress code committee.

Committee will be given complete freedom in the arrangement of the best possible policy of dress that will be effective and acceptable.

Committee is headed this spring by co-chair men Dave Stallings and John Hough. Don Littleton and Dan Hazel, president and vice-president elect, serve on the committee to maintain continuity from this year until next fall.

Paul Johnson and Turner Marshall also serve on the committee.

Senior homeroom presidents on the committee are Ron Humphries, Jim Denbow, and Donna Wheeler.

Junior homeroom presidents are Barbara Culbertson, David Dollar, and Ted Watkins.

Todd Leslie Eskew

Eskew Boy Named For Palsy Drive

"I don't know what to say about it, but I'm happy!"

That was the excited reaction of Todd Leslie Eskew when he learned that he had been selected as the poster boy for the Scott-Mississippi County Cerebral Palsy drive. Todd is the son of L. B. and Bessie Eskew, 110 Jackson Street, Sikeston. Todd, who was 8 years old this past Wednesday, is a very happy and cheerful young boy, even though he is unable to walk, and has practically no use of his arms or hands. He has cerebral palsy, the result of an illness he had when he was 11 days old.

Todd is one of the first children to be evaluated at the Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic. His parents decided to live in Sikeston rather than Cape Girardeau when they learned the Diagnostic Clinic would be located in Sikeston.

Todd has been attending school at the Diagnostic Clinic the past year. Although his speech has always been good, he has now learned how to count, spell his name and other short words, and had learned the alphabet and the colors, among other things. He also receives speech stimulation, physical therapy and recreational activities, and has matured socially a great deal. In addition, a complete set of braces has been obtained for him through the Cerebral Palsy Unit.

He enjoys music, particularly country and western. His favorites are Homer and Jethro. One of the highlights of his stay at the clinic was when Ken Curtis, bettern known as "Festus" of the Gunsmoke TV series, visited Todd at the Diagnostic Clinic.

The Scott-Mississippi County Cerebral Palsy campaign for funds is currently in progess.

Cerebral palsy is a condition caused by damage to the human brain, usually at birth. "Cerebral" refers to the brain and "palsy" to lack of control over the muscles. Various forms of the disorder are classified depending on the area of the brain affected. Three main types are the spastic individual who moves stiffly and with difficulty, the athotoid who has involuntary and uncontrolled movements, and the ataxic whose sense of balance and depth perception are disturbed.

Since cerebral palsy affects the muscle control centers of the brain, its most common effects are awkward, shambling gait, lack of balance, tremors, guttural speech and grimacing. Spasms and seizures in varying degrees, mental retardation and defects in vision and deafness are also commonly an integral part of the disorder.

There are more than 600,000 persons in the United States who have Cerebral Palsy, and almost all of these persons can be helped in some way. Cerebral Palsy is not a disease, nor is it hereditary or contagious.

The campaign chairman for the Sikeston drive is Miss Pauline Poeppelmeyer. The Elks Club will set up a roadblock Saturday morning from 9:00 to 1:00, and the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority members will be contacting all local businesses to collect money for the United Cerebral Palsy. The money, 70% of which remains in the local area, is used to purchase equipment, braces or medical services for the Cerebral Palsy persons in the Scott - Mississippi County Area. Persons wanting to give, but not contacted, may call Mrs. Noah Heath, (649-2373) who is the president of the Scott-Mississippi County affiliate chapter.

The Prayer
from The Upper Room

Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I, even I, will both search my sheep, and seek them out. Ezekiel 34:11)

PRAYER: O God, our Father, we confess to having lost a sense of priorities and the right use of time. Enable us to care for those next door who know Thee not. Help us so to act that the lambs near us will look up and always be fed, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

GIDEON — The Gideon Park Boards, which has control of the entire park area which includes the baseball park, has announced plans for the park this year to include lighting the pavilion, re-working the net at the tennis court, replacing the net on the basketball goal, installing outdoor rest rooms for use at the park, ball park and arena. Repairs will be made at the ball park, such as new wire to protect the spectators, work on the bleachers, new permanent type bases, and other repairs that may become necessary.

Our summer baseball program will begin sometime around May 26, a definite date to be announced later. The program this year is under the management of Mr. Ronald Brawner. Plans are for the usual teams for the youth of the community - Tri-County team for high school age boys, Pony League and Little League traveling teams and the usual City League teams. The City League will be managed by local volunteer help as in the past. Thus far the men committed to work are: Rev. Lou Barton, Tom Jordan, Jimmy Brice, and Don Winston. Other men will be needed to work with these men. If you are interested in working with the youth in this program, please contact Mr. Brawner, Burl Nowlin, Darrell Shock or Gerald McElrath.

The Gideon Park Board is directly responsible to the City Council for their acts. They welcome constructive criticism at all times, Chairman Encell Kitchen says.

There are some youths playing ball in the afternoon now at the ball park. Please understand this is not a part of the program conducted by the Park Board, the supervision of the playing is authorized by the board. When our program starts, you will again be notified of who is in charge and on what afternoon, also the boys will be insured against injury- which they are not at the present time unless you have such a policy on your son. First priority of the ball park goes to the youth when the program starts, second priorty will be given to the Ladies Softball team (an organized team, the park being available to them when there are no youth games scheduled. No one will be authorized by the Park Committee to use the lights on Wednesday nights.

By LEONARD F. HAND

The ESSA Weather Bureau 30 Day Outlook for May indicates below normal temperature averages and above normal rainfall totals for the Missouri Bootheel.

Most high pressure systems influencing the Bootheel will enter the Pacific Northwest and cross the Northern Rockies and Plains to the upper Mississippi Valley. Centers will generally follow a path north of the Missouri Border, drawing cool air southward over the state at times. The most likely result is one or two nights with cool readings followed by warming southerly winds as each system passes through.

Low pressure centers are expected to develop in the Rockies and cross the Mississippi Valley on a line through Northern Missouri. This path is more likely to link rainfall with showery conditions as cold fronts move across the state. A similar pattern during the latter part of April reduced the development of secondary disturbances that opened up the Gulf joisture source for heavy rains early in the month. Five day weather outlooks will be a good guide to timing and amounts of rain anticipated during this critical period.

Rainfall totals were generally well above normal for April, with 8.68 inches collected at Portageville, and 8.75 at the University of Missouri Experiment Field near Hayward. The bulk of this water was received during the first three weeks of April, nd less than an inch fell in the last 12 days of the month, with only two days with measurable rain. Good drying weather under predominantly sunny skies brought fields back into shape so that planting was underway on many farms by the end of the month.

Although temperatures are on the upswing in May, they are not normally warm enough to promote sufficient evaporation to dispose of the normal rainfall. A surplus of near an inch of rain usually goes into soil storage or runoff. Excess field water combined with occasional cool spells are a tip off to watch for seedling diseases and need for post emergence weed control in field crops. Timing of shower periods may also affect spray schedules for diseases in strawberry and orchard crops.

Normal rainfall for May for the Bootheel as a whole is 4.46 inches. Normals for other cities are:

Cape Girardeau 4.80 Inches, Caruthersville 4.24 inches, Dexter 4.59 inches, Doniphan 4.84 inches, Morehouse 4.42 inches, New Madrid 4.90 inches, Parma 4.70 inches, Poplar Bluff 4.83 inches, Sikeston 4.44 inches.

1. Advisory Agricultural Meteorologist, ESSA, Weather Bureau University of Missouri Delta Center, Portageville, Mo.

Short term averages for other points:

Advance 4.53 inches, Bernie 4.67 inches, Bloomfield 4.77 inches, Charleston 5.26 inches, Clearwater Dam 5.46 inches, Deering 3.83 inches, Kennett 5.60 inches, Malden 4.38 inches, Portageville 5.77 inches, Puxico 5.02 inches, Qulin 4.61 inches, Wappapello Dam 4.95 inches.

Long term records show that for May with above normal rainfall, the average totals measured at Poplar Bluff was 7.54, Sikeston 7.81 and Caruthersville 7.78 inches.

The ranges of measurements under those conditions were Poplar Bluff 5.18 inches to 13.10, Sikeston 5.20 to 13.34, Caruthersville 5.48 to 13.93 inches.

Soil temperatures respond rapidly to warm, sunny weather, and should recover well from brief cool periods. However, it does take more heat to warm wet soils. At the same time, the presence of water in the soil reduces heat loss to the atmosphere. Readings taken early in May showed that 4 inch temperatures were still cooler than at seedbed levels, so that heat transfer from lower layers will be only a slight influence in moderating seedbed cooling at night. Long periods of cloudy weather will slow the upward trend in soil warmth more effectively than short periods of cooling.

Union Delegate Collects For Shower Injuries

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Handsome Harry was chosen by his union to attend a pompous and rumpus union convention with all expenses paid. A delegate-at-large (he went without his wife), Harry never got to participate in the festivities. While taking a shower in his hotel room, he slipped on a treacherous cake of soap and ended up on his back in the hospital instead of his feet at the convention.

Out of commission for several months, Harry applied for a Workman's Compensation Award on the theory that his injury was due to his job as a union delegate.

"Nonsense," Harry was told. "Taking a shower was an act of personal cleanliness and not a union activity. Since it was of no benefit to the union, you're not entitled to an award."

"You're wrong," was Harry's answer. "My taking a shower was certainly of benefit to the union. If I had gone down to the convention hall looking and smelling like a Pete the Tramp, I'd have been of no value as delegate. No one would have come close enough to talk to me."

Determined to collect, Harry took his claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Harry a Workman Compensation Award for his spill in the shower?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that when an employee is sent to a convention as a delegate, his appearance is just as important to his employer as it is to himself. After all, noted the judge, since no one wants to do business with a dirty man, his mission would be seriously hampered if he didn't look and smell his best.

Evaluation of Cong Peace Plan Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is expected to instruct his Paris envoys to determine whether the Viet Cong's 10-point Vietnam peace plan is a propaganda gimmick or a sign of readiness for serious bargaining.

The 10 points, proposed by the Viet Cong's Tran Buu Kiem at Thursday's Paris session, stack up basically as a combination of elements in the four and five-point plans long standard in North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomatic presentations.

But the new text omitted their customary propaganda polemics, went into greater detail than before, used some different phrasings and left enough ambiguities to whet the appetites of U.S. strategists searching for a break in the lengthening stalemate at the conference table.

It also was noted that Kiem's statement was the first such enemy presentation since the return to Paris of Le Duc Tho, the most powerful member of the North Vietnamese negotiating team, from consultations in Hanoi.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., commented that the 10-point program should provide "a reasonable starting point" for Vietnam peace negotiations.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., commented that the 10-point program should provide "a reasonable starting point" for Vietnam peace negotiations.

Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, said in a statement that this is the "first initiative on the part of the NLF (National Liberation Front) which contains enough in the way of substance to offer a hopeful possibility that the talks may now get off dead center and that a responsible settlement of the war in Vietnam may be forthcoming."

"The detailed proposals of the NLF should be given a close examination," Mansfield said.

Nixon discussed the enemy plan with security affairs advisor Henry A. Kissinger at Key Biscayne, Fla., following the news from Paris.

Since the President sees secret talks as the best way to make negotiating progress, the U.S. mission headed by Henry Cabot Lodge probably will try to sound out enemy envoys privately.

Both the Florida White House and the State Department in Washington were keeping silent on any U.S. reaction to the enemy proposal at this time. There was a possibility a South Vietnamese response would come from Saigon following U.S. consultations with the Thieu government.

The 10-point proposition dealt with issues fundamental for both allies—withdrawal of foreign forces and the political future of South Vietnam.

The Viet Cong statement called for a pullout of all U.S. troops unconditionally without pledging a withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces or even admitting they are in South Vietnam. This has been rejected by the allies in the past.

But it also said, without amplification, that "The question of the Vietnamese armed forces in South Vietnam shall be resolved by the Vietnamese parties among themselves." And it proposed "international supervision"—not further specified—of withdrawal of American troops.

The United States has been proposing international supervision to safeguard a settlement — and U.S. negotiators would be interested if Hanoi is willing to accept international inspection to insure that its forces go home too.

On the political front, the statement went into detail on proposals to replace the present Saigon leadership with a coalition government which would be succeeded by a national regime based on free elections.

Pile of Proposals for Ike Memorials Growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is considering a growing pile of bills to memorialize Dwight D. Eisenhower. Proposals range from naming the first moon landing site in his honor to putting his picture on the dollar bill in place of George Washington's.

Legislation to honor the World War II commander and 34th president who died March 28 are stacked in Capitol Hill hoppers with 25 bills introduced in the House alone. All are still in committee.

Some call for naming a dam after Eisenhower as well as two airports, the interstate highway system and the moon landing site.

Eisenhower's family says it has no favorite among the plans.

"We've been very honored by all the proposals," said his son, John by telephone from his Phoenixville, Pa., home.

"I don't think it's up to us to recommend anything. I can't see a hunk of marble somewhere, though."

Eisenhower seldom publicly discussed his wishes on memorials.

"That would be the last thing Dad would ever talk about," John said.

But in a speech at the dedication of Eisenhower Park in Newport, R.I., July 22, 1960, President Eisenhower told the crowd: "I am deeply touched by this kind of gracious incident and thought for the simple reason that a name given to a place like this endures."

Another of his favorite namesakes was Eisenhower College at Seneca Falls, N.Y., which enrolled the charter freshman class of 300 last fall. In the announcement of his death, Eisenhower's family suggested donations to the college, among other charities, instead of flowers.

The bill to name the first U.S. moon landing site "Point Eisenhower" was introduced by Rep. William G. Bray, R-Ind.

Slain Priest's Auto Found

MEMPHIS (AP) — Police reported today the automobile of a Roman Catholic priest, who was slain April 18 in a Sullivan, Mo., motel, was found on a downtown Memphis parking lot early today.

Police said a prisoner held in Connecticut in connection with the slaying had told authorities there he left the car in Memphis and threw away the keys.

A warrant issued by Franklin County, Mo., authorities Thursday charged George F. Mcenerney, 28, of Ansonia, Conn., in the strangulation of Msgr. Howard C. Teacle, 46, of Shreveport, La.

Msgr. Teacle's body was found April 18 in a Sullivan, Mo., motel room. He had been teaching at Villa Duchesne High School and resided at Immaculata Rectory in Clayton, a St. Louis suburb.

Another man also is sought in connection with the priest's death.

Mcenerney was arrested by police in Derby, Conn., Wednesday for failure to pay a hotel bill.

Strip Mine Bill Moves Step Closer

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's first strip mine reclamation law was advanced to position for passage on a voice vote in the Senate Thursday.

A similar measure is pending in the House.

Under the watered down compromise version winning first round approval in the Senate, only strip coal mines would be covered. Limestone quarries, barite mines and fire clay pits were eliminated in committee.

The bill started as a project of an interim study committee on mining and was intended to stave off a federal takeover in this field.

Sen. William J. Cason, D Clinton, handling the bill, said the Peabody Coal Co., largest coal operator in Missouri, had no objections to the measure.

Coal mine operators would have to get permits from a State Strip Pit Reclamation Commission and would be required to restore disturbed land to a rolling topography suitable for forestation, pasture or crops.

The commission would include the state geologist, conservation director, mine inspector, secretary of the water pollution board, two coal mine operators, one mine employe and one representing the public at large.

Violation would be a misdemeanor subject to a $50 to $1,000 fine and each day would be a separate violation.

Earlier the Senate shunted aside a bill to extend the present public anti - discrimination law to all employers instead of only those hiring 25 or more workers. The bill must be delayed until an estimate of its cost is attached.

Also advanced was a bill to increase retirement benefits to about 1,220 aged teachers to $150 a month if their net worth is below $30,000.

Another measure moved ahead before the Senate quit for the week would set up a system of contesting school elections.

The House passed and sent to the Senate bills to:

Give county assessors and their staffs pay raises with half the cost paid by the state. The House defeated an emergency clause that would have made the increases effective as soon as approved by the governor.

Increase the monthly benefits under the blind pension fund and the aid to the blind from $85 to $95.

Let the division of mental diseases license and regulate homes for the mentally retarded.

Grant Cutback Puts Squeeze on Public Libraries

NEW YORK (AP) - Scholars and students are among the 8,000 who each day visit the terraced Fifth Avenue research library, the grandaddy of this city's 192 free public libraries.

Now it and the others are in serious financial trouble.

The money-squeeze may force a drastic curtailment in operations, closure of 36 branches and termination of 500 jobs if budget-makers in the city, state and Washington get their way.

And elsewhere in the nation, libraries are facing similar problems as wage scales increase in the face of mounting reluctance by local and state governments to approve fatter budgets.

Mark Revaluation Rated Monetary Crisis Solution

NEW YORK (AP) — Another monetary crisis is boiling up in Europe. Once again it centers on a widely expected revaluation of the German mark.

What are the elements of this complicated problem? Here, based on the opinions of experts, are some answers to frequently asked questions:

Q. What is revaluation?

A. When a currency is revalued its relationship or parity to other currencies is raised. For example, a German mark costs about 25 cents now. If Germany revalues the mark 8 per cent —the amount experts say it will be changed —the mark would cost about 27 cents. After revaluation more French francs and British shillings would have to be paid for marks than before.

Q. What are the causes behind the pressure to revalue?

A. There are numerous pressures but the foremost is that Germany continues to earn more abroad than it spends. It had a $4 billion trade surplus last year and the surplus is expected to be higher this year. Speculators are betting Germany's trade partners will not tolerate this imbalance much longer.

Q. But how could the United States and other countries be better off if marks cost more to buy?

A. The United States has been running a balance of payments deficit. After revaluation of the mark U.S. goods would be more attractive on German markets. The same holds true for the goods of other countries trading with Germany, because the mark now would buy more than it did before. Germans would buy more imports.

Conversely, German goods would become more expensive in foreign markets. After revaluation the price of a Volkswagen might go up. This could make the new Ford Maverick more attractive to American consumers.

Q. Is the dollar under attack in this crisis?

A. No. While the dollar is being used as a vehicle for speculation, the mark is the volatile currency. The French franc and the British pound also figure in the speculation, as holders trade them for marks.

Q. Was the franc weakened by French President Charles de Gaulle's resignation?

A. De Gaulle's resignation may have started the snowball rolling again, but it didn't cause the problem any more than a chronic headache is caused by stopping the use of aspirins.

France has been pummeled by an inflationary spiral since its riots last spring and has lost billions of reserves. De Gaulle's formidable posture on maintaining the value of the franc held off devaluation, but there is speculation a new

Q. The British pound has been under pressure. Is this because of the mark?

A. Not exactly. Britain long has been in the situation of the man who earns $100 a week but spends $200.

It used to be the island center of an empire, from which it could draw resources. But the empire has slipped away and now this island nation must pay for the imports on which it is so heavily dependent.

Q. Will Germany, which has said revaluation is not in sight, finally give in?

A. Experts say the question is not "Will Germany revalue?" but "when will it revalue."

Q. Why would Germany be reluctant to revalue?

A. Germany revalued its mark upwards by 5 per cent in 1961, and the results were not encouraging. German farmers found their goods became less competitive in Europe. Germany views further revaluation as a last resort.

Arms Talk Delay Sought For New Weapons Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Joint Chiefs of Staff reportedly are trying to convince the Nixon administration to delay U.S.-Soviet arms talks to allow testing this summer of a new missile weapons system.

The military leaders are said to be concerned that starting the talks earlier would prevent testing the Multiple Independently Targeted Re-entry Vehicles—MIRVs—and put the United States behind the Soviets in deployment of the multiwarhead system.

Supporters of an early start to the disarmament talks are said by government sources to feel that a delay might dim Soviet interest in an arms agreement because of Moscow's fear of losing ground to the United States in development of MIRVs.

Defense experts feel the United States is ahead in developing MIRVs at this time.

Such a weapons system is considered the next significant step in the arms race. MIRVs involve equipping existing missiles with several nuclear warheads that can be fired at several targets or used as scatter decoys to confuse enemy radar.

In fact, many of those involved in the current debate over the Safeguard antiballistic missile system feel MIRVs would provide an even greater threat to the world's nuclear strategic balance than the ABM.

As one Safeguard opponent put it, if the ABM as planned is susceptible to being flooded by a massive Soviet missile attack, it would be even more susceptible if the missiles were equipped with MIRVs.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers' public position on the start of arms talks is that they will take place probably in the latter half of June.

An indication the Soviets may be interested in early arms talks was seen in the announcement Thursday by the official Soviet news agency Tass that nuclear nonproliferation treaty, ratified by the U.S. Senate in March, had been submitted to the Soviet parliament.

Action is expected at the Supreme Soviet's next session, probably in June. The treaty signed last July by the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union does not become binding until ratified by all three.

U.S. officials have proposed that the Soviet Union and United States ratify the treaty simultaneously, but the State Department said Thursday it had received no response from the Soviets as yet.

The first place the United States plans to put MIRVs is in its nuclear submarine fleet, as it switches from the Polaris missiles to the multiheaded poseidons.

The first vessel scheduled for conversion, the Andrew Jackson, is currently at the Naval shipyard at New London, Conn., with final testing of the Poseidon scheduled this summer.

Thus, a final determination that the weapon is operational could precede the opening of arms talks if they are delayed.
